Russian Literature In The Baltic Between The World Wars:

Russian Literature in the Baltic Between the World Wars Temira Pachmuss, 1988 Russian Literature in the Baltic Between the World Wars Temira Pachmuss, 1988 A History of Women's Writing in Russia Adele Marie Barker, Jehanne M. Gheith, 2002-07-11

A History of Women's Writing in Russia offers a comprehensive account of the lives and works of Russia's women writers. Based on original and archival research, this volume forces a re-examination of many of the traditionally held assumptions about Russian literature and women's role in the tradition. In setting about the process of reintegrating women writers into the history of Russian literature, contributors have addressed the often surprising contexts within which women's writing has been produced. Chapters reveal a flourishing literary tradition where none was thought to exist. They redraw the map defining Russia's literary periods; they look at how Russia's women writers articulated their own experience and they reassess their relationship to the dominant male tradition. The volume is supported by extensive reference features including a bibliography and guide to writers and their works.

History of the Literary Cultures of East-Central Europe Marcel Cornis-Pope, John Neubauer, 2006-09-13

Continuing the work undertaken in Vol 1 of the History of the Literary Cultures of East Central Europe, Vol 2 considers various topographic sites: multicultural cities, border areas, cross-cultural corridors, multiethnic regions that cut across national boundaries, rendering them permeable to the flow of hybrid cultural messages. By focusing on the literary cultures of specific geographical locations, this volume intends to put into practice a new type of comparative study. Traditional comparative literary studies establish transnational comparisons and contrasts but thereby reconfirm, however inadvertently, the very national borders they play down. This volume inverts the expansive momentum of comparative studies towards ever broader regional, European, and world literary histories. While the theater of this volume is still the literary culture of East Central Europe, the contributors focus on pinpointed local traditions and geographic nodal points. Their histories of Riga, Plovdiv, Timișoara, or Budapest, of Transylvania or the Danube corridor, to take a few examples, reveal how each of these sites was during the last two hundred years a home for a variety of foreign or ethnic literary traditions next to the one now dominant within the national borders. By foregrounding such non-national or hybrid traditions, this volume pleads for a diversification and pluralization of local and national histories. A genuine comparatist revival of literary history should involve the recognition that treading on native grounds means actually treading on grounds cultivated by diverse people.

Reference Guide to Russian Literature Neil Cornwell, 2013-12-02

First Published in 1998, this volume will surely be regarded as the standard guide to Russian literature for some considerable time to come. It is therefore confidently recommended for addition to reference libraries, be they academic or public.

Eastern European Railways in Transition Henry Jacolin, 2016-04-29 During the nineteenth century railway lines spread rapidly across Europe linking the continent in ways unimaginable to previous generations By the beginning of the twentieth century the great cities of the continent were linked by a complex and extensive rail network Yet this high point of interconnectivity was abruptly cut off after 1945 as the Cold War built barriers both physical and ideological between east and west In this volume leading transport history scholars take a fresh look at this situation and the ramifications it had for Europe As well as addressing the parallel development of railways either side of the Iron Curtain the book looks at how transport links have been reconnected and reconfigured in the twenty years since the reunification of Europe In particular it focuses upon the former communist countries and how they have responded to the challenges and opportunities railways offer both nationally and internationally Including contributions from historians researchers policy makers representatives of railway companies and railway museum staff the essays in this collection touch upon a rich range of subjects Divided into four sections The Historical Overview Under Russian Protection After the Fall of the Iron Curtain and The Heritage of Railways in Eastern Europe the volume offers a broadly chronological introduction to the issue that provides both a snap shot of current debates and a starting point for further research It concludes that in an era of increased globalisation and interconnectivity and despite the rise of air and road transport and virtual methods of communication railways still have a crucial role to play in the development of a prosperous and connected Europe
