which he demonstrated that the oft recited claim that the early chapters of Genesis betrayed a background or adaptation by Israel of mythological terms and or motifs from other ancient Near Eastern literature could not be supported by a close examination of the linguistic data. Despite the book's positive reception the notion that the Chaoskampf motif lies behind the early chapters of Genesis continues to be rehearsed in the literature as if the data were incontrovertible. In this revised and expanded edition of the 1989 book Tsumura carries the discussion forward. In part 1 the general thesis of the original work is restated in a significantly revised and expanded form. In the second part of this monograph he expands the scope of his research to include a number of poetic texts outside the Primeval History texts for which scholars often have posited an ancient Near Eastern mythological substratum. Among the questions asked are the following: What are the functions of waters and flood in biblical poetry? Do the so-called chaos dragons in the Old Testament such as Leviathan, Rahab and Yam have anything to do with the creation motif in the biblical tradition? What is the relationship between these poetic texts and the Ugaritic myths of the Baal-Yam conflict? Are Psalms 18 and 29 adaptations of Canaanite hymns as suggested by some scholars? Among the conclusions that Tsumura reaches are these: 1. The phrase tohu wabohu has nothing to do with the idea of a chaotic state of the earth. 2. The term tehom in Gen 1:2 is a Hebrew form derived from the Proto-Semitic tiham 'ocean' and it usually refers to the underground water that was overflowing and covering the entire surface of the earth in the initial state of creation. 3. The earth-water relationship in Gen 2:5-6 is different from that in Gen 1:2. In Gen 1:2 the earth was totally under the water; in Gen 2:5-6 only a part of the earth, the land, was watered by the ed water which was overflowing from an underground source. 4. The biblical poetic texts that are claimed to have been influenced by the Chaoskampf motif of the ancient Near East in fact use the language of storms and floods metaphorically and have nothing to do with primordial combat.
