Paizis, 1998-09-07 The popularity of romance fiction is such that it constitutes nearly one quarter of new paperback fiction printed in the world Its success depends on its ability to reflect and articulate the reader's aspirations for a better life and stands at the same time as a testament to her alienation This fresh look at the romantic fiction seeks to discover the reason for its appeal by combining analysis of the poetics of the genre with a study of the real reader's intervention Metamorphosis-1. Perception offers a comprehensive and accessible introduction to the science of sensation and perception. It covers all the human senses and answers many questions such as why movies are so convincing, how ventriloquism works, why things sound different as you get older, and why you may feel ill in an aircraft or sea vessel. Full of illustrations and graphs that bring concepts to life, the textbook covers vision, hearing, balance, touch, pain, smell, and taste. It discusses each sensory system through its fundamental neuroscience, major perceptual qualities, and underlying coding principles. Each chapter includes reflective questions, key terms, and information boxes, and chapter summaries. Each chapter ends with a tutorial section which introduces more advanced areas of study in an accessible way, including measurement of light and Fourier analysis, as well as topics outside of the mainstream of sensation, including music perception, colour deficiencies, and phantom limbs. The fourth edition of this bestselling textbook includes an extensive update of the text to reflect the latest research, a greater focus on balance and the body senses, and a major reorganisation of the chapters for ease of use. It will be an invaluable resource for a wide range of undergraduate students in psychology, neuroscience, and related disciplines.

Silhouettes of a Treasured Heritage Stella Osammor, 2019. Silhouettes of a Treasured Heritage is a fictional narrative which examines the consequences of being a person of racially mixed parentage in our world today. It is a thrilling and critical appreciation of such experiences as told by Miranda, the heroine, who experiences that would be familiar to many people of similar background. The novel uniquely and dispassionately explores issues from both sides of the racial divide. It challenges stereotypical perceptions of love and hate, power and influence. It is a story of healing, of hope, and of promise for a racially divided world. Miranda takes the reader through her life in Britain, Ghana, and the USA. Am I white or Black, she asks.

Infant Perception: From Sensation to Cognition Leslie B. Cohen, Philip Salapatek, 2013-10-22. Infant Perception: From Sensation to Cognition Volume II: Perception of Space, Speech, and Sound covers comprehensive programmatic examinations which are arranged along a continuum from basic sensory and neurophysiological functioning to information processing and memory. This volume is organized into two parts encompassing six chapters and begins with the difficulties prior research has had in assessing infant perception of depth or space. The next chapters provide a link between infants' perception of space and their perception of objects and evaluate both psychometric studies of object concept development and studies focusing specifically on Piaget's theory. These topics are followed by discussions of the infant's development of the concept of self and that concept is used to explain the infant's perception of other persons. The final chapters deal with the infant's vision and audition. These chapters specifically describe the developmental anatomy of the auditory pathway and the electrophysiological functioning and capacity. A series of studies on the infant's receptiveness for the segmental units of speech, the ability to perceive phonemic feature contrasts, and the manner in which this perception occurs is also provided. This book will prove useful to developmental psychologists and biologists.
