her new book are among the most memorable of Mississippi's vanished antebellum and Victorian mansions. The list ranges from the oldest house in the Natchez region lost in a 1966 fire to a Reconstruction era home that found new life as a school for freed slaves. From two Gulf Coast landmarks both lost to Hurricane Katrina to the mysteriously misplaced facades of Hernando's White House and Columbus's Flynnwood, these homes mark high points in the broad sweep of Mississippi history and the state's architectural legacy. Miller tells the stories of these homes through accounts from the families who built and maintained them. These structures run the stylistic gamut from Greek revival to Second Empire and their owners include everyone from Revolutionary era soldiers to governors and scoundrels.

The Lost Country, Episode Four: "The Devil's Triangle" Wayne Kyle Spitzer, 2021-03-16. First came the time storm which erased half the population. Then came the Dinosaur Apocalypse. How did it all begin? Well, that depends on where you were and who you ask. In some places it started with the weather which quickly became unstable and began behaving in impossible ways. In still others it started with the lights in the sky which shifted and pulsed and could not be explained. Elsewhere it started with the disappearances, one here, a few there, but increasing in occurrence until fully three quarters of the population had vanished. Either way, there is one thing on which everyone agrees: it didn't take long for the prehistoric flora and fauna to start showing up, often appearing right where someone was standing, in which case the two were fused, spliced, amalgamated. It didn't take long for the great Time displacement called the Flashback, which was brief but had aftershocks like an earthquake, to change the face of the earth. Nor for the stories, some long and others short, some from before the maelstrom and resulting societal collapse and others after, to be recorded. Welcome to the Lost Country. From The Devil's Triangle. There were six of them, as I said, all of whom rushed us the instant our feet touched the ground. All of whom snarled and charged us like wolverines as we raised our weapons and fired the flare gun, cracking and hissing, blanching the scarlet haze for the sun had painted everything red and gold, its projectile punching through one of the raptors' chests and lighting it up so that its ribs were backlit briefly and I could see, if only for an instant, its burning, beating heart. Yet still they came, another one leaping at me even as I dropped the gun which clattered against the planks as I dropped it and grabbed the thing by its neck, then brought the knife down with my other hand and stabbed it between the eyes. Run, I shouted, even as Amanda shot another, her second, and then bolted toward the shore, drawing the others so that I was able to snatch up the flare gun and quickly reload it so that I was able to pursue them and to shoot one in the back while Amanda turned and took out the last of them, shooting it in the head so that the back of its skull exploded like a spaghetti dinner thrown against the wall so that it collapsed writhing about 10 feet in front of her whereupon she quickly approached it and shot it again just to be sure And then she looked at me as the dead and dying animals lay all around us and I looked back our chests heaving our faces covered in sweat our worn clothes bloody and disheveled and I knew that she knew which was that today we were the predators the thing needing to be feared the killers And that neither of us needed to worry not about food or other predators or mysterious lights in the sky or anything Because we were the masters of our fate we and no one else not even God And we were the master of the world s fate too At which she ran to me and we collided and I held her fast there on the long jetty in the Atlantic Ocean in the Bermuda Triangle there beneath a day moon and the blood red sky in an instant in which it was good so very good not to be afraid not to be alone And as to what may or may not have happened in those breaths those pulse points between that moment and the next the next day the next search the next milestone as to that I offer only a quote from Gandhi Speak only if it improves upon the silence

House and Society in the Ancient Greek World Lisa C. Nevett,2001-05-10 This 1999 book re examines traditional assumptions about the nature of social relationships in Greek households during the Classical and Hellenistic periods Through detailed exploration of archaeological evidence from individual houses Lisa Nevett identifies a recognisable concept of the citizen household as a social unit and suggests that this was present in numerous Greek cities She argues that in such households relations between men and women traditionally perceived as dominating the domestic environment should be placed within the wider context of domestic activity Although gender was an important cultural factor which helped to shape the organisation of the house this was balanced against other influences notably the relationship between household members and outsiders At the same time the role of the household in relation to the wider social structures of the polis or city state changed rapidly through time with the house itself coming to represent an important symbol of personal prestige
