Louisiana Buildings, 1720-1940 Jessie Poesch, Barbara SoRelle Bacot, 1997-08-01 The only New Deal program to continue into the 1990s the Historic American Buildings Survey has through the years drawn attention to the historical and artistic significance of buildings that contemporary taste might otherwise have ignored Louisiana Buildings 1720 1940 makes easily available the fruit of HABS's important and enduring efforts to record Louisiana's architectural heritage In the 1930s the Louisiana HABS team concentrated on public edifices and grand plantation complexes threatened by destruction Later records of HABS include still other habitations of the common man as well as industrial structures The project has yielded not only graphic and written documentation of the buildings many no longer standing but also new insights into the history of the state's architecture An invaluable part of Louisiana Buildings 1720 1940 is the alphabetical listing of HABS structures in Louisiana both by familiar name and by parish The listing by parish gives the location the date of construction the architect when known and the current status of each building It also presents drawings or photographs of many of the structures over 300 pictures in all There are besides nine chapters by leading architectural historians who cover all aspects of Louisiana architecture its Creole beginnings in the south of the state the Appalachian folk style in the north and developments on the plantation in the seventeenth century urban setting and in the modern era Those chapters form an essential frame of reference for the data in the HABS listings and call attention to many other structures that are a part of the history of building in the Pelican State Anyone interested in the state's architecture or history will find Louisiana Buildings

Pastras, 2001-07-02 When Ferdinand Jelly Roll Morton sat at the piano in the Library of Congress in May of 1938 to begin his monumental series of interviews with Alan Lomax he spoke of his years on the West Coast with the nostalgia of a man recalling a golden age a lost Eden He had arrived in Los Angeles more than twenty years earlier but he recounted his losses as vividly as though they had occurred just recently The greatest loss was his separation from Anita Gonzales by his own account the only woman I ever loved to whom he left almost all of his royalties in his will In Dead Man Blues Phil Pastras sets the record straight on the two periods 1917-1923 and 1940-1941 that Jelly Roll Morton spent on the West Coast In addition to rechecking sources correcting mistakes in scholarly accounts and situating eyewitness narratives within the histories of New Orleans or Los Angeles Pastras offers a fresh interpretation of the life and work of Morton one of the most important and influential early practitioners of jazz Pastras's discovery of a previously unknown collection of memorabilia including a 58 page scrapbook compiled by Morton himself sheds new light on Morton's personal and artistic development as well as on the crucial role played by Anita Gonzales In a rich fast moving and fascinating narrative Pastras traces Morton's artistic development as a pianist composer and bandleader Among many other topics Pastras discusses the complexities of racial identity for Morton and his circle his belief in voodoo his relationships with women his style of performance and his roots in black musical traditions Not only does Dead Man Blues restore to the historical record invaluable information about one of the great innovators of jazz it also brings to life one of the most colorful and fascinating periods of musical transformation on the West Coast
