Writing Vietnam, Writing Life Tobey C. Herzog, 2009-05 Phillip Caputo, Larry Heinemann, Tim O'Brien, and Robert Olen Butler. Four young midwestern Americans coming of age during the 1960s who faced a difficult personal decision whether or not to fight in Vietnam. Each chose to participate. After coming home, these four veterans became prizewinning authors, telling the war stories and life stories of soldiers and civilians. The four extended conversations included in Writing Vietnam, Writing Life feature revealing personal stories alongside candid assessments of each author's distinct roles as son, soldier, writer, and teacher of creative writing. As Tobey Herzog's thoughtful interviews reveal, these soldier authors have diverse upbringings, values, interests, writing careers, life experiences, and literary voices. They hold wide-ranging views on, among other things, fatherhood, war, the military, religion, the creative process, the current state of the world, and the nature of both physical and moral courage. For each author, the conversation and richly annotated chronology provide an overview of the writer's life, the intersection of memory and imagination in his writing, and the path of his literary career. Together, these four life stories also offer mini tableaux of the fascinating and troubling time of the 1960s and 1970s in America. Above all, the conversations reveal that each author is linked forever to the Vietnam War, the country of Vietnam, and its people.

The Creative Process Todd Lubart, 2018-08-29. The creative process refers to the sequence of thoughts and actions that are involved in the production of new work that is both original and valuable in its context. This book examines this process across the domains of visual art, writing, engineering, design, and music. It characterizes each domain's creative process based on evidence stemming from creators' accounts of their own activity and a wide range of observational material and theories specific to each field. Results from empirical research are then presented across a set of closely linked chapters using a common set of methodologies that seek to trace the creative process as it unfolds. This highly interdisciplinary edited collection offers valuable insight into the creative process for scholars and practitioners in the fields of psychology, education, and creative studies, as well as for any other readers interested in the creative process. Todd Lubart brings together a group of authors who are themselves actively involved in their respective creative fields and invites readers to adopt a broad perspective on the creative process in order to unravel some of its mysteries.
