Lost Architectures:

Lost Buildings Jonathan Glancey, 2008 Have you ever wished that you could have seen King Solomon's mighty Temple in Jerusalem or climbed to the top of the legendary Tower of Babel? What must it have been like to have paraded up and down the great glass galleries of the Crystal Palace in London in 1851? Why is the Euston Arch demolished in 1961 still missed? What would buildings described in much-loved books have been like if these had existed outside their author's imaginations? Imagine walking through the labyrinthine corridors of Mervyn Peake's mythical Gothic fortress Gormenghast or visiting Toad Hall. And what of the current trend for reconstructing buildings which were destroyed in wartime or for political reasons? Lost Buildings is an invitation to visit buildings long vanished or those demolished within living history: some by dim politicians, others by war or acts of God, that we would pay good money and travel a long way to see if only they existed today. It looks too at buildings from literature, myth and children's stories and some lost opportunities: fantastic, ambitious designs that were never built. There are countless buildings that remain vivid in the collective memory, whether they were once real or were only ever imagined. Lost Buildings brings these together for the reader's curiosity and delight.

Lost Architectures Neil Spiller, 2001-03-23 This book stands in opposition to the popular notion that the best architecture is built on compromise. Rather, Neil Spiller argues, the most original and brave products of the architectural mind are often to be found in those projects which, for whatever reason, never came to fruition. Lost Architectures presents an array of such projects from the last decades of the twentieth century, constituting the unrealised dreams of some of the most inspirational architects working in the period. Most of the projects featured here have seldom, if ever, been published before and some represent the last hand-drawn work of their creators before the age of the computer finally came into full force. Whilst they do not follow any specific style, these projects embody a spirit defined by Spiller as New Romanticism: a spirit which combines elements of aesthetic decadence and a certain camp mannerism with a love of angularity and mechanised ritual. Some of the architects in question are still in practice with a great deal of high-profile built work behind them; others have never been recognised as they perhaps should have been. In both cases, this book is an invaluable resource of information and inspiration for students of architecture as well as for theorists, historians and lay readers. It provides essential exposure for a range of work of great vitality which might otherwise risk being lost in the course of time.

Impact of Industry 4.0 on Architecture and Cultural Heritage Bolognesi, Cecilia Maria, Santagati, Cettina, 2019-12-13 In the modern age of the 4th Industrial Revolution, advancements in communication and connectivity are transforming the professional world as new technologies are being embedded into society. These innovations have triggered the development of a digitally driven world where adaptation is necessary. This is no different in the architectural field where the changing paradigm has opened new methods and advancements that have yet to be researched Impact of Industry 4.0 on Architecture and Cultural Heritage is a pivotal reference source that provides vital research on the application of new technological tools such as digital modeling within architectural design and improves the understanding of the strategic role of Industry 4.0 as a tool to empower the role of architecture and cultural heritage in society Moreover the book provides insights and support concerned with advances in communication and connectivity among digital environments in different types of research and industry communities While highlighting topics such as semantic processing crowdsourcing and interactive environments this publication is ideally designed for architects engineers construction professionals cultural researchers academicians and students The Comics of Chris Ware David M. Ball, Martha B. From the Temple to the Castle Lee Morrissey,1999 Visiting Britain in the mid 18th century Andre Rouquet wrote that in England more than in any other country every man would fain be his own architect Not surprisingly then several of the most important 18th century British authors were also practicing architects John Vanbrugh a playwright designed Blenheim Palace the poet Alexander Pope offered architectural drawings for redesigning the houses of friends and Horace Walpole claimed that the home he renovated Strawberry Hill inspired his Novel The Castle of Otranto. The work of John Milton and Thomas Gray also exhibits an abiding interest in architecture. By examining the connections between literature and architecture in the work of these writers and by viewing architecture in literary terms, Lee Morrissey traces a narrative of cultural change in the Augustan age and beyond. A literary scholar with a strong background in architectural theory and practice, Morrissey examines architectural references made by these authors and architectural publications familiar to them. Each chapter establishes a connection with architecture in the careers of an author and then describes how a principal text, Paradise Lost, The Provoked Wife, An Essay on Man, Elegy Written in a Country Churchyard, and The Castle of Otranto, focuses the literary and historical issues of the period in architectural terms. While some 20th-century architectural theorists have worried that treating architecture in literary terms robs it of its social function, Morrissey argues that architecture can be a language and still participate in political and social contexts because language itself is political and social. The fruit of his argument is a unique intellectual history of late 17th and early 18th-century Britain of use to scholars of architectural history and landscape architecture as well as of literature.
