

★ GIANT PANCAKES ★

It's quite plain that Uncle Buck is not a man who is easily intimidated, and his cooking skills are far from average. In fact, he is a master of the art of the giant pancake. He has made them for his family and friends for years, and he has a secret recipe that he has passed down to his son, Buck. The recipe is simple, but it is the way that Uncle Buck makes them that is truly special. He uses a special griddle that he has made himself, and he cooks them on a special stove that he has also made himself. The result is a giant pancake that is as big as a small car, and it is the perfect size for a family of five.

Ingredients

1 cup of flour
1 cup of sugar
1 cup of milk
1 cup of oil
1 cup of eggs
1 cup of vanilla
1 cup of salt
1 cup of baking powder

Method of large quantity of servings

Place the ingredients in a large bowl and mix together until the batter is smooth. Then, pour the batter into a large griddle and cook for 10 minutes.

Food in the Movies, 2d ed. Steve Zimmerman, 2010-07-28 Although food has been part of motion pictures since the silent era for the most part it has been treated with about as much respect as movie extras it s always been there on the screen but seldom noticed For the most part filmmakers have settled on three basic ways to treat food as a prop in which the food is usually obscured from sight or ignored by the actors as a transition device to compress time and help advance the plot as a symbol or metaphor or in some other meaningful way to make a dramatic point or to reveal an aspect of an actor s character mood or thought process This hugely expanded and revised edition details 400 food scenes in addition to the 400 films reviewed for the first edition and an introduction tracing the technical artistic and cultural forces that contributed to the emergence of food films as a new genre originated by such films as Tampopo Babette s Feast and more recently by films like Mostly Martha No Reservations and Ratatouille A filmography is included as an appendix
