Morss, Niamh Stephenson, Hans van Rappard, 2013-06-29 Theoretical Issues in Psychology is published as the discipline of psychology enters its at least third century The year 2001 brings with it millennial reflections as well as the strange sense of déjà vu that we derive from the Kubrick movie As to the former a glance at the contents list of this volume will demonstrate both the maturity and the vigour of theoretical debate within psychology. There is a level of sophistication here that should be the cause of quiet celebration. Recent ideas about discursive practice and subjectivity, chaos theory and autopoiesis are effortlessly entrained with classical issues. Canonical texts are looked at with fresh eyes. Unresolved social and political questions are doggedly persisted with and new perspectives on the human experience are pioneered. We are not afraid of long words even if French in origin but nor are we afraid to recognise that we are physical beings who touch other beings who hold desire and remember and who talk talk talk. For surely it is theoretically sensitive work in psychology whether critical or not that best represents what the discipline has to offer the wider community.

Semiotic Evolution and the Dynamics of Culture Marcel Bax, Barend van Heusden, Wolfgang Wildgen, 2004. This book is about patterns of development in the history of culture. Bringing together three areas of research: semiotics, cultural history and evolutionary psychology, it attempts to bridge the gap that still separates the study of culture from the cognitive sciences. The multidisciplinary approach chosen by the contributors derives its impetus from the deep conviction that in order to understand the logic of cultural development one must take the building blocks of culture—that is, signs and language—as a starting point for research. Central issues related to patterns of cultural evolution are dealt with in contributions on the development of mind and culture, the history of the media, the diversity of sign systems, culture and code and the dynamics of semiosis. Theoretically oriented contributions alternate with in-depth case studies on such diverging topics as the evolution of language and art in prehistory, ritual as the fountainhead of indirect communication, developments in renaissance painting, the evolution of classification systems in chemistry, changing attitudes toward animal consciousness and developments in computer technology.
