Redesigning Cities Jonathan Barnett, 2017-11-13. This book is recommended reading for planners preparing to take the AICP exam. Too often no one is happy with new development. Public officials must choose among unappealing alternatives; developers are frustrated and the public is angry. But growing political support for urban design, developers' interest in community building and successful examples of redesigned cities all over the U.S. are hopeful signs of change. The author explains how design can reshape suburban growth patterns, revitalize older cities and retrofit metropolitan areas where earlier development decisions went wrong. The author describes in detail specific techniques, materials and technologies that should be known but often aren't to planners, public officials, concerned citizens and others involved in development.

Experiencing Cities Mark Hutter, 2015-12-22. This extraordinary text for undergraduate urban students is a reflection of Mark Hutter's academic interests in urban sociology and his life-long passion for experiencing city life. His deep academic roots in the Chicago School of Sociology help inform and appreciate the variety of urban structures and processes and their effect on the everyday lives of people living in cities. This text however extends the Chicago School perspective by combining its traditions with a social psychological perspective derived from symbolic interaction and also with a macro level examination of social organization, social change, stratification and power in the urban context informed by political economy. This entirely new 3rd Edition has a global outlook on city life and a visual presentation unmatched among books in this genre.
