Cobb, Charles Reagan Wilson, 2014-02-01 Volume 11 of The New Encyclopedia of Southern Culture examines the economic culture of the South by pairing two categories that account for the ways many southerners have made their living In the antebellum period the wealth of southern whites came largely from agriculture that relied on the forced labor of enslaved blacks After Reconstruction the South became attractive to new industries lured by the region s ongoing commitment to low wage labor and management friendly economic policies Throughout the volume articles reflect the breadth and variety of southern life paying particular attention to the region s profound economic transformation in recent decades The agricultural section consists of 25 thematic entries that explore issues such as Native American agricultural practices plantations and sustainable agriculture Thirty eight shorter pieces cover key crops of the region from tobacco to Christmas trees as well as issues of historic and emerging interest from insects and insecticides to migrant labor The section on industry and commerce contains 13 thematic entries in which contributors address topics such as the economic impact of military bases resistance to industrialization and black business Thirty six topical entries explore particular industries such as textiles timber automobiles and banking as well as individuals including Henry W Grady and Sam M Walton whose ideas and enterprises have helped shape the modern South

The Materiality of Individuality Carolyn L. White, 2009-08-15 Generally individuals in history are known for a particular reason they somehow influenced history Very little is known about the ordinary person who lived in the past But historical archaeologists through their interpretation of the material culture and historic record can study the past on an individual level This brings archaeological interpretation from a micro to a macro level as opposed to the traditional level of society to community to individual interpretation The cases presented in this volume engage material culture that is owned or used by a single person and is thus associated with an individual at some point in its use life The volume takes bodkins shoes beads cloth religious items grave goods as well as subassemblages from well defined contexts from New England the Chesapeake New Orleans Hawaii Spanish colonial America and London in the pursuit of the individual and the textured interpretation this analytical scale provides This volume promises to present innovative approaches to a host of archaeological materials drawing widely on the range of archaeological research for the historical period today Capitalizing on several topics and research threads with great currency such as the examination of material culture and interest in various and intersecting lines of identity construction as well as presenting an international and multiregional approach to these topics this volume will be of interest to archaeologists anthropologists material culture scholars and social historians interested in a wide variety of time periods and subfields

Troubled Waters Paul F. Paskoff, 2007-12-01 In Troubled Waters Paul F Paskoff offers a comprehensive examination of the federal government's river improvements program which aimed to reduce hazards to navigation on the great rivers of America's interior during the early and mid nineteenth century Danger on the rivers came in a variety of forms Shoals rapids ice rocks sandbars and uprooted trees and submerged steamboat wrecks lodged in river beds were the most common perils and accounted for the largest number of steamboat disasters This daunting array of river hazards required a similarly broad range of efforts to remove or at least ameliorate them Against a variety of obstacles natural political and technological the river improvements program succeeded in reducing the rate of steamboat loss even as steamboat traffic dramatically increased Its success Paskoff argues demonstrates that the federal government was far more active than generally thought in promoting economic growth and development in the years leading up to the Civil War The river improvements program was one of the most volatile issues in national sectional and state politics touching on questions of economic development constitutional law partisan politics and sectional rivalry Paskoff examines the controversial program from its beginnings during the early republic to 1844 giving careful attention to the policies of Andrew Jackson's administration. He explores the array of objections to the program some grounded in a strict interpretation of the Constitution and others in a concern over alleged federal wantonness corruption and waste and follows the political story through the administration of James K. Polk forward to secession. Paskoff also explains the fiscal economic and technological aspects of the hazard problem and its solution analyzing the federal government's fiscal condition its capacity to undertake such an ambitious program and the influence of conditions in the larger economy including effects of the Mexican War upon the federal government's finances. Paskoff's lively analysis rests on a bedrock of impressive quantitative evidence including databases containing every documented steamboat wreck more than 1 200 on American rivers lakes and coastal waters construction and engine data for more than 600 steamboat packets and all relevant federal appropriations and expenditures measures more than 2 300 spending projects in all. Vigorously researched and vividly told Troubled Waters is an essential contribution to the history of internal improvements in the antebellum United States. Editor & Publisher Market Guide, 2004, 2003 Directories in Print, 2011 Lords to Bureaucrats Stephen

Le Vine, 2025-06-12 This book is about the history of Town Halls in Sussex. There are over thirty towns and villages in Sussex with what we can call a Town Hall. Some still have their Town Halls while others have lost them over time. In some cases they have been replaced by a modern Civic Centre. In many towns more than one building has been used yet others have not had a Town Hall for many years. With a village choosing to become a town they had the choice to elect a mayor. Some did and some did not. One village covered in the book has had two mayors over a ten year period but only in office for two hundred days. Most towns in the book have an accompanying photograph of the Town Hall with details of the town's prominent residents involved with local government. There is also information on council involvement in the set up of the Police Fire and Ambulance services in the county. Nelson Information's Directory of Investment Research, 2005 Ecological Bulletins, Targets and Tools for the Maintenance of Forest Biodiversity Per Angelstam, Monica Donz-Breuss, Jean-Michel Roberge, 2009-05-06 Maintaining forest biodiversity by combining protection management and restoration of forest and woodland landscapes is a central component of sustainable development. Evidence that there are threshold levels for how much habitat loss may be tolerated for viable populations of specialised species to be maintained. Policy makers businesses and managers pose questions about how to balance use of renewable forest resources and conserve biodiversity. Examples are presented on how biodiversity assessments can be made. Proposes how the critical gaps in our knowledge identified throughout the book could be filled through macroecological research and international co operation.
