No Place for Children Steve Liss, 2005-06-01 This work of photojournalism goes inside the system to offer an intimate often disturbing view of children's experiences in juvenile detention Steve Liss photographed and interviewed young detainees their parents and detention and probation officers in Laredo Texas His photographs reveal that these are vulnerable children sometimes as young as ten coping with a detention environment that most adults would find harsh In the accompanying text he brings in the voices of the young people who describe their already fractured lives and fragile dreams as well as the words of their parents and juvenile justice workers who express frustration at not having more resources with which to help these kids BOOK JACKET No Place for Kids Richard A. Stone,2005-03 It's tough to solve a dead cop's murder when there's no hard evidence it's tougher still when the cops don't want to believe the crime ever happened It gets even more difficult when small town politicians fight scorched earth turf wars and when a high priced well connected crime consultant sets you up to take the rap for not only that crime but a half dozen other homicides as well even a former FBI profiler and black Ops agent can find himself backed into a deadly corner When a respected cop is found naked and dead in a sleazy motel emotionally battered FBI profiler turned reluctant PI Jonathan Kraag sets out to clear the dead man's reputation The trail leads Kraag to homicide cases hot and cold and behind wholesome facades to the dark seamy underside of suburban life Scorned by infighting local politicians hunted by local law enforcement and with no tangible evidence to support his claims Kraag risks his life and fragile sanity as he pits his deductive skills against a vicious manipulative killer who seems to hold all the trump cards and to have a hold on his heart
