Natives, Europeans, and Africans in Sixteenth-Century Santiago de Guatemala Robinson A. Herrera, 2010-01-01 The first century of Spanish colonization in Latin America witnessed the birth of cities that while secondary to great metropolitan centers such as Mexico City and Lima became important hubs for regional commerce Santiago de Guatemala the colonial capital of Central America was one of these A multiethnic and multicultural city from its beginning Santiago grew into a vigorous trading center for agrarian goods such as cacao and cattle hides With the wealth this commerce generated Spaniards natives and African slaves built a city that any European of the period would have found familiar This book provides a more complete picture of society culture and economy in sixteenth century Santiago de Guatemala than has ever before been drawn Robinson Herrera uses previously unstudied primary sources including testaments promissory notes and work contracts to recreate the lives and economic activities of the non elite sectors of society including natives African slaves economically marginal Europeans and people of mixed descent His focus on these groups sheds light on the functioning of the economy at the lower levels and reveals how people of different ethnic groups formed alliances to create a vibrant local and regional economy based on credit This

Clothing the New World Church Maya Stanfield-Mazzi, 2021-02-15 The book provides the first broad survey of church textiles of Spanish America and demonstrates that while overlooked textiles were a vital part of visual culture in the Catholic Church When Catholic churches were built in the New World in the sixteenth century they were furnished with rich textiles known in Spanish as church clothing These textile ornaments covered churches altars stairs floors and walls Vestments clothed priests and church attendants and garments clothed statues of saints The value attached to these textiles their constant use and their stunning visual qualities suggest that they played a much greater role in the creation of the Latin American Church than has been previously recognized In Clothing the New World Church Maya Stanfield Mazzi provides the first comprehensive survey of church adornment with textiles addressing how these works helped establish Christianity in Spanish America and expand it over four centuries Including more than 180 photos this book examines both imported and indigenous textiles used in the church compiling works that are now scattered around the world and reconstructing their original contexts Stanfield Mazzi delves into the hybrid or mestizo qualities of these cloths and argues that when local weavers or embroiderers in the Americas created church textiles they did so consciously with the understanding that they were creating a new church through their work The chapters are divided by textile type including embroidery featherwork tapestry painted cotton and cotton lace In the first chapter on woven silk we see how a silk standard was established on the basis of priestly preferences for this imported cloth The second chapter explains how Spanish style embroidery was introduced in the New World and mastered by local artisans The following chapters show that in select times and places spectacular local textile types were adapted for the church reflecting ancestral aesthetic and ideological patterns Clothing the New World Church makes a significant contribution to the fields of textile studies art history Church history and Latin American studies and to interdisciplinary scholarship on material culture and indigenous agency in the New World
