Viruses, Immunity, and Mental Disorders Edouard Kurstak,Z.J. Lipowski,P.V. Morozov,2014-01-13 In spite of progress in biomedical research we know little about the causes prevention and treatment of the numerous mental and neurological disorders that afflict up to 15% of all individuals In the last decade great advances have been made in the physiopathology of mental and neurological disorders leading to at least a partial control of Parkinson s disease epilepsy certain psychoses and anxiety syndromes Despite the fact that an underlying specific neurotransmitter deficiency has been demonstrated in Alzheimer s and Parkinson s diseases the immune dysfunction and viral hypotheses continue to be attractive for investigators dealing with these degenerative diseases of the aging brain which afflict 10% of senior citizens A retrospective epidemiologic study suggests that the encephalitis lethargica and parkinsonism were almost certainly caused by the 1918 influenza virus pandemics It must be stressed that the etiopathogenesis of many mental disorders is not known and this ignorance has led to several untenable neurophysiological and biochemical hypotheses Epidemiologic investigations show a high prevalence of functional psychoses and organic mental disorders Although many of them are conceptualized as biopsychosocial disorders recent data indicate that the biological component appears more and more as a major etiologic factor Among the various biological hypotheses the viral and immunologic concept has become a significant one In view of recent discoveries in virology and immunity it becomes clear that viral and immunologic hypotheses should be investigated more systematically concerning the mechanisms of numerous mental and neurological disorders
