Plaza, 2006-01-26 Maria Plaza sets out to analyse the function of humour in the Roman satirists Horace Persius and Juvenal Her starting point is that satire is driven by two motives which are to a certain extent opposed to display humour and to promote a serious moral message She argues that while the Roman satirist needs humour for his work s aesthetic merit his proposed message suffers from the ambivalence that humour brings with it Her analysis shows that this paradox is not only socio ideological but also aesthetic forming the ground for the curious hybrid nature of Roman satire Figuring Genre in

Anderson, 2014-07-14 The fifteen essays collected here argue that Roman verse satire should be viewed primarily as an art form rather than as a social document or a direct expression of social protest Originally published between 1956 and 1974 they constitute an impressive attempt to free Roman satire from misinterpretations that arose during the romantic era and that continue to plague scholars in the field The author rejects the proposition that Juvenal and other satirists expressed spontaneous unadorned anger and that the critic s best approach is the study of the historical social economic and personal circumstances that led to their statement of that anger This work develops his thesis that Roman satire was designed as a literary form and that the proper stance of the critic is to elucidate its art Focusing on the dramatic character of the first person speaker in the satires of Horace Persius and Juvenal the author shows both how the speaker s role was shaped to suit the purposes of the individual poems and how that role changed over successive collections of satires Several essays also discuss the ways in which the satirists employed metaphors and similes and used contemporary ethical and rhetorical themes

McKay,1976 Juvenal and the Satiric Emotions Catherine Keane,2015-02-23 In his sixteen verse Satires Juvenal explores the emotional provocations and pleasures associated with social criticism and mockery He makes use of traditional generic elements such as the first person speaker moral diatribe narrative and literary allusion to create this new satiric preoccupation and theme Juvenal defines the satirist figure as an emotional agent who dramatizes his own response to human vices and faults and he in turn aims to engage other people's feelings Over the course of his career he adopts a series of rhetorical personae that represent a spectrum of satiric emotions encouraging his audience to ponder satire's proper emotional mode and function Juvenal first offers his signature indignatio with its associated pleasures and discomforts then tries on subtler personae that suggest dry detachment callous amusement anxiety and other affective states As Keane shows the satiric emotions are not only found in the author's rhetorical performances but they are also a major part of the human farrago that the Satires purport to treat Juvenal's poems explore the dynamic operation of emotions in society drawing on diverse ancient literary rhetorical and philosophical sources Each poem uniquely engages with different texts and ideas to reveal the unsettling powers of its emotional mode Keane also analyzes the emotional plot of each book of Satires and the structural logic of the entire series with its wide range of subjects and settings From his famous angry tirades to his more puzzling later meditations Juvenal demonstrates an enduring interest in the relationship between feelings and moral judgment Essays on Roman Satire William Scovil Anderson,1982 The fifteen essays collected here argue that Roman verse satire should be viewed primarily as an art form rather than as a social
