The Stake Jay Cady,2015-08-09 Excerpt from The Stake A Story of the New England Coast In the distance lie isolated masses of rock which seem to have moved out from the shore like scouts to receive the first shock of attack from their eternal foe the Sentinel the Hound the Jaw bone each has its name famous in many local traditions Woe betide the mariner who attempts to sail these seas unless he know well the many perils of rock and shoal which beset his course at every turn Indeed few venture in these waters save the handful of fishermen who for generations from father to son have sailed in and out of the cove and followed these invisible pathways guided by that same instinct which enables a landsman to walk fearlessly in the dark through the familiar passages of his dwelling place The outsider who wishes to visit Atherton s Cove has a choice of two ways of reaching it He can take the Boston steamer to Harport twenty five miles to the south and thence when the sea is calm and the weather fair may go by launch along the coast and slip into the cove at high tide Or he may choose the morning train on the shore line leave the cars at the little station of Oldfield and take the rickety stage which will carry him ten miles over a rocky road to his destination About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work Forgotten Books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy In rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition We do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works     A Summer Cruise on the Coast of New England Robert Carter,1889     Gaonica Simha Assaf,1933
