Lessons From the Recession Sarah Sanderson King, Donald P. Cushman, 1997-04-25 This book explores the differential effects of recession on public and private sector organizations in America Europe and Asia In America the last recession led private sector firms to lower their break even points and the government to seek new sources of tax revenue In Europe both the public and private sector organizations focused on the outflow of jobs and the rise in unemployment due to high labor costs high public support program costs and the failure of the European Community to become a Common Market In Asia Japan underwent a large emigration of production offshore due to the high yen to dollar ratio a lengthy recession and a massive government aid program which failed In Australia and China the economies recovered from recession and both public and private sector organizations have designed new strategies to keep the economy moving Human Behavior and Social Environments Dennis Saleebey, 2001-08-20 Human behavior is a subject so vast that it would seem to defy one's ability to comfortably and confidently grasp its varieties, nuances, shapes, and dynamics. But in this wide-ranging and comprehensive survey of the contexts of human behavior, Dennis Saleebey examines the different social science approaches to understanding the way humans react to and are affected by their environment. Using a biopsychosocial perspective, this book demonstrates that there are many paths of knowledge, many methods of inquiry, and many perspectives that can guide one's understanding of human behavior. Resilience, how we cope with trauma, and meaning-making, how we see and make sense of the world around us, provide the conceptual framework of the book. Saleebey examines a number of specific theories relevant to the biopsychosocial approach: part-whole analysis, psychodynamic theory, ecological theory, cognitive theory, and radical critical theory. Human development is presented as a continuing interaction between individual, family, community, social institutions, and culture. Pedagogical devices to aid the student include chapter overviews, case studies, and meaning-making dialogues at the end of each chapter that pose questions for further thought. Handbook of Community-Based Clinical Practice Anita Lightburn, Phebe Sessions, 2006 Bridges community practice and clinical practice by collecting 33 chapters from social workers, psychologists, and psychiatrists that outline and illustrate the state of the art. Designed specifically for clinicians making the transition to community-based work.
