

A photograph of four children playing on a green lawn. A girl with long blonde hair in a yellow shirt is on top of a girl in a pink shirt, who is on top of a boy in a maroon shirt. A boy in a green shirt is on the left, also smiling. They are all looking down or towards the camera with happy expressions. The background is a blurred green field with some yellow flowers.

Goldstein, 2003-07-17 Gender roles are nowhere more prominent than in war Yet contentious debates and the scattering of scholarship across academic disciplines have obscured understanding of how gender affects war and vice versa In this authoritative and lively review of our state of knowledge Joshua Goldstein assesses the possible explanations for the near total exclusion of women from combat forces through history and across cultures Topics covered include the history of women who did fight and fought well the complex role of testosterone in men's social behaviours and the construction of masculinity and femininity in the shadow of war Goldstein concludes that killing in war does not come naturally for either gender and that gender norms often shape men women and children to the needs of the war system Illustrated with photographs drawings and graphics and drawing from scholarship spanning six academic disciplines this book provides a unique study of a fascinating issue The Benefits of Rough and Tumble Play with Young Children Alyssa Hendrick, 2016 The SAGE Encyclopedia of Contemporary Early Childhood Education Donna Couchenour, J.
