days below the rim miles walked switchbacks negotiated stream crossings walking speed and pounds carried Conquering the canyon an impossible and foolish quest ceased to be a goal He returned to the canyon because of the effect it had on him not because of what he could do in it or to it The canyon allowed him to discover his ability to persevere despite discomfort afforded an opportunity to learn more about the natural world we live in and gave him a deeper appreciation of the need to seek the solace afforded by sauntering below the rim

Driven Wild Paul S. Sutter, 2009-11-23 In its infancy the movement to protect wilderness areas in the United States was motivated less by perceived threats from industrial and agricultural activities than by concern over the impacts of automobile owners seeking recreational opportunities in wild areas Countless commercial and government purveyors vigorously promoted the mystique of travel to breathtakingly scenic places and roads and highways were built to facilitate such travel By the early 1930s New Deal public works programs brought these trends to a startling crescendo The dilemma faced by stewards of the nation's public lands was how to protect the wild qualities of those places while accommodating and often encouraging automobile based tourism By 1935 the founders of the Wilderness Society had become convinced of the impossibility of doing both In Driven Wild Paul Sutter traces the intellectual and cultural roots of the modern wilderness movement from about 1910 through the 1930s with tightly drawn portraits of four Wilderness Society founders Aldo Leopold Robert Sterling Yard Benton MacKaye and Bob Marshall Each man brought a different background and perspective to the advocacy for wilderness preservation yet each was spurred by a fear of what growing numbers of automobiles aggressive road building and the meteoric increase in Americans turning to nature for their leisure would do to the country's wild places As Sutter discovered the founders of the Wilderness Society were driven wild pushed by a rapidly changing country to construct a new preservationist ideal Sutter demonstrates that the birth of the movement to protect wilderness areas reflected a growing belief among an important group of conservationists that the modern forces of capitalism industrialism urbanism and mass consumer culture were gradually eroding not just the ecology of North America but crucial American values as well For them wilderness stood for something deeply sacred that was in danger of being lost so that the movement to protect it was about saving not just wild nature but ourselves as well

American West Karen R. Jones, 2009-03-21 The American West used to be a story of gunfights glory wagon trails and linear progress Historians such as Frederick Jackson Turner and Hollywood movies such as Stagecoach 1939 and Shane 1953 cast the trans Mississippi region as a frontier of epic proportions where savagery met civilization and boys became men During the late 1980s this old way of seeing the West came under heavy fire Scholars such as Patricia Nelson Limerick and Richard White forged a fresh story of the region a new vision of the West based around the conquest of peoples and landscapes This book explores the bipolar world of Turner's Old West and Limerick's New West and reveals the values and ambiguities associated with both historical traditions Sections on Lewis and Clark the frontier and the cowboy sit alongside work on Indian genocide and women's trail diaries Images of the region as seen through the arcade Western Hollywood film and Disney theme parks confirm the West as a symbolic and contested landscape Tapping into popular fascination with the Cowboy Hollywood movies the Indian Wars and Custer s Last Stand the authors show the reader how to deconstruct the imagery and reality surrounding Western history Key Features Uses popular subjects the Cowboy Hollywood westerns the Indian Wars and Custer s Last Stand to enliven the text Includes 13 b w illustrations Interdisciplinary approach covers film literature art and historical artefacts

My Life of High Adventure Grant H. Pearson, Philip Newill, 2018-12-01 MT MCKINLEY ALASKA 1932 From the south peak a hundred thousand square miles of Alaskan wilderness stretched out before his eyes This was America s last land frontier It was the land Grant Pearson had dreamed of as a boy and lived in full as a man when he came to be known as one of Alaska s most famous 20th century pioneers This was how to chose to live his LIFE OF HIGH ADVENTURE Exciting vivid an excellent account Hal Borland New York Times All Hands , 1962 Lines on the Land Scott Herring, 2004 Lines on the Land Writers Art and the National Parks Scott Herring The nineteenth century photographer William Henry Jackson once complained of the skepticism with which early descriptions of Yellowstone were met the place was too wondrous to be believed The public demanded proof and a host of artists and writers obliged These early explorers possessed a vigorous devotion to the young nation s wilderness the naturalist John Muir famously toured the land from Wisconsin to Florida on foot and through their work established aesthetic categories that exist to this day In Lines on the Land Scott Herring contends that these writers and artists were canon makers recognizing the national parks as naturally occurring works of art and conferring upon them a cultural prestige the parks were the splendid focal points of the American landscape These early canonizing works are homages to a vast untouched wilderness This praise would gradually give way however to a distinctly American anger what Herring calls outraged idealism Later generations were faced with a changing culture that had imperfectly absorbed and even misrepresented the national park aesthetic The postwar park was overrun by cars and tourists who could not possibly match the pioneering naturalists profound commitment to and appreciation for their surroundings The collective tone of the parks chroniclers as a result evolved from celebration of awesome beauty to indignation over the perceived corruption of the parks both as an ideal and as actual physical settings Herring traces this shift through the work of a wide spectrum of creative minds from early figures such as Muir and Thomas Moran to later observers of the parks such as Ansel Adams Sylvia Plath Edward Abbey and Rick Bass The text is punctuated by autobiographical interchapters in which Herring relates the book s chief themes to his own experiences in Yellowstone National Park Under the Sign of Nature Explorations in Ecocriticism Roughing it Deluxe Brian K. Gilles, Cooperative Park Studies Unit (Moscow, Idaho), United States. National Park Service. Pacific Northwest Region. Division of Interpretation and Visitor Services, Horace M. Albright Training Center (U.S.), 1981* Catalogue of Copyright Entries Library of Congress. Copyright Office, 1941 Epiphany in the Wilderness Karen R. Jones, 2016-01-02 Whether fulfilling subsistence needs or featured in stories of grand adventure hunting loomed large in the material and the imagined landscape of the nineteenth century West. Epiphany in the Wilderness explores the social, political, economic, and environmental dynamics of hunting on the frontier in three acts, using performance as a trail guide and focusing on the production of a cultural ecology of the chase in literature, art, photography, and taxidermy. Using the metaphor of the theater, Jones argues that the West was a crucial stage that framed the performance of the American character as an independent, resourceful, resilient, and rugged individual. The leading actor was the all-conquering masculine hunter hero, the sharpshooting man of the wilderness who tamed and claimed the West with each provident step. Women were also a significant part of the story, treading the game trails as plucky adventurers and resilient homesteaders and acting out their exploits in autobiographical accounts and stage shows. Epiphany in the Wilderness informs various academic debates surrounding the frontier period, including the construction of nature as a site of personal challenge, gun culture, gender adaptations, and the crafting of the masculine wilderness hero figure, wildlife management and consumption, memorializing and trophy taking, and the juxtaposition of a closing frontier with an emerging conservation movement.
