Monograph Of The Genus Eperua Leguminosae Caesalpinioideae:

A Monograph of the Genus Eperua (Leguminosae-Caesalpinioideae) Richard S. Cowan, 1975 All available data are brought together in a monographic treatment of the legume genus Eperua Eighteen taxa are considered of which four are described as new E duckeana E obtusata E grandiflora ssp guyanensis and E jenmanii ssp sandwithii Also one new combination is made E glabriflora Ducke Cowan In addition to gross morphology anatomy of leaf epidermis and palynology of most of the species are presented for the first time Pollen morphology is particularly instructive with respect to the classification derived principally from vegetative and floral morphology

It provides both a conceptual and a technical foundation for the understanding and analysis of problems arising in biology and physiology. The theory and methods are illustrated on a wide range of examples and applications. A process of extreme complexity growth plays a fundamental role in many biological processes and is considered to be the hallmark of life itself. Its description has been one of the fundamental problems of life sciences but until recently it has not attracted much attention from mathematicians, physicists and engineers. The author herein presents the first major technical monograph on the problem of growth since D Arcy Wentworth Thompson's 1917 book On Growth and Form. The emphasis of the book is on the proper mathematical formulation of growth kinematics and mechanics. Accordingly the discussion proceeds in order of complexity and the book is divided into five parts. First a general introduction on the problem of growth from a historical perspective is given. Then basic concepts are introduced within the context of growth in filamentary structures. These ideas are then generalized to surfaces and membranes and eventually to the general case of volumetric growth. The book concludes with a discussion of open problems and outstanding challenges. Thoughtfully written and richly illustrated to be accessible to readers of varying interests and background, the text will appeal to life scientists, biophysicists, biomedical engineers and applied mathematicians alike. Geophytology, 1987. A Monograph of Wallaba, Mora and Greenheart H. ter Steege, 1990. Bibliography of Agriculture with Subject Index, 1976-07. Advances in Legume Biology C.
