Rezballers and Skate Elders David Kamper,2025-06 Ethnographer and American Indian studies scholar David Kamper examines how Indigenous youth and adults are making basketball and skateboarding meaningful to their communities by sustaining the transmission of intergenerational knowledge and combatting intergenerational trauma Kamper looks at how the events and tournaments built around rezball are similar to powwows in how they bring people together across localized communities and generations and he coins the phrase skate elders for those who use the social nature of skateboarding to build community and mentorships Through a broad picture of North America Kamper demonstrates how Native peoples have long indigenized cultural practices and material culture to assert Native sovereignty creating joy and hope in the process In Rezballers and Skate Elders Kamper considers how Native expressions of basketball and skateboarding show continuities with the historical transformation of practices that originated outside Indian Country to make them meaningful in Native life David Kamper is a professor of American Indian studies associate director and cofounder of the Center for Skateboarding Action Sports and Social Change and cofounder of Surf Skate Studies Collaborative at San Diego State University He is the author of The Work of Sovereignty Tribal Labor Relations and Self Determination at the Navajo Nation and coeditor of Waves of Belonging Indigeneity Race and Gender in the Surfing Lineup Artistic Impressions Mary Louise Adams,2011-02-19 In contemporary North America figure skating ranks among the most feminine of sports and few boys take it up for fear of being labelled effeminate or gay Yet figure skating was once an exclusively male pastime women did not skate in significant numbers until the late 1800s at least a century after the founding of the first skating club Only in the 1930s did figure skating begin to acquire its feminine image Artistic Impressions is the first history to trace figure skating's striking transformation from gentlemen's art to girls sport With a focus on masculinity Mary Louise Adams examines how skating's evolving gender identity has been reflected on the ice and in the media looking at rules technique and style and at ongoing debates about the place of art in sport Uncovering the little known history of skating Artistic Impressions shows how ideas about sport gender and sexuality have combined to limit the forms of physical expression available to men Men who Batter Nancy

Nason-Clark, Barbara Fisher-Townsend, 2015 Men who act abusively have their own story to tell a journey that often begins in childhood ripens in their teenage years and takes them down paths they were hoping to never travel Men Who Batter recounts the journey from the point of view of the men themselves The men's accounts of their lives are told within a broader framework of the agency where they have attended groups and the regional coordinated community response to domestic violence which includes the criminal justice workers e.g. probation parole judges and those who staff shelters and work in advocacy Based on interview data with this wide array of professionals we are able to examine how one community in one western state responds to men who batter Interwoven with this rich and colorful portrayal of the journey of abusive men we bring twenty years of fieldwork with survivors and those who walk alongside them as they seek safety healing and wholeness for themselves and their children Women who have been victimized by the men they love often hold out hope that if only their abusers could be held accountable and receive intervention the violence will stop and their own lives will improve dramatically as a result While the main purpose of Men Who Batter is to highlight the stories of men told from their personal point of view it is countered by reality checks from their own case files and those professionals who have worked with them And finally interspersed within its pages is another theme finding religious faith or spiritual activity in unlikely places
