War Stories Mark Pedelty, 2020-12-22 What are the influences on war correspondents as they report on news in war torn countries Originally published in 1995 Mark Pedelty explores the lives work and culture of an international press corps He writes about the reporters who covered El Salvador's civil war Going beyond those specifics to look at the institutions practices myths and rituals that pattern the work of journalists everywhere He tells us the stories of war correspondents at work and at play as they cover the news The myth developed in part from the movies we watch and from CNN is that war is reported from the front lines More often it is reported from the front office as journalists sit around waiting for something big to happen Pedelty looks at the context in which they construct their reports Unnamed diplomats in the US Embassy feed stories to reporters who are careful not to alienate these crucial sources by adding background information that might be perceived as ideological Reporters are also constrained by the pens and preferences of editors who work to narrow the focus of news reporting removing necessary context in the process By examining how news stories are actually produced Pedelty highlights the elusiveness of the goal of objective journalism We see how the biases of war correspondents are connected to structures of power and how these biases affect actual journalistic practices Pedelty also explores alternative possibilities for war reporting including emerging alternative international news services and ways to deepen reporters understandings of the countries and problems they cover Influenced by anthropology communication studies cultural studies and sociology this book will interest scholars and students in those fields as well as journalists and anyone who watches reads or listens to news
