All Politics Is Global Daniel W. Drezner, 2008-08-18 Has globalization diluted the power of national governments to regulate their own economies Are international governmental and nongovernmental organizations weakening the hold of nation states on global regulatory agendas Many observers think so But in All Politics Is Global Daniel Drezner argues that this view is wrong Despite globalization states especially the great powers still dominate international regulatory regimes and the regulatory goals of states are driven by their domestic interests As Drezner shows state size still matters The great powers the United States and the European Union remain the key players in writing global regulations and their power is due to the size of their internal economic markets If they agree there will be effective global governance If they don't agree governance will be fragmented or ineffective And paradoxically the most powerful sources of great power preferences are the least globalized elements of their economies Testing this revisionist model of global regulatory governance on an unusually wide variety of cases including the Internet finance genetically modified organisms and intellectual property rights Drezner shows why there is such disparity in the strength of international regulations
