S. Higham,Michael Lück,2008 This book seeks to underscore the need for scientific approaches to first understanding and then managing tourist interactions with marine wildlife It draws upon the work of leading natural and social scientists whose work serves the interests of sustainable wildlife based marine tourism Thus from within the natural science disciplines of marine biology environmental science behavioural ecology conservation biology and wildlife management come chapters that provide insights into the effects of human disturbance on marine wildlife the impacts that tourists may have upon wild animals and the management approaches to mitigating impacts that may in the long term be biologically significant Equally from the social science disciplines of geography sociology management and social anthropology are drawn chapters that explore demand for marine wildlife experiences the benefits that visitors derive from their experiences ethical and legislative contexts and management issues that arise when tourists interact with populations of wild animals in coastal and marine environments A History of New Zealand Women Barbara Brookes,2016-02-15 What would a history of New Zealand look like that rejected Thomas Carlyle s definition of history as the biography of great men and focused instead on the experiences of women One that shifted the angle of vision and examined the stages of this country s development from the points of view of wives daughters mothers grandmothers sisters and aunts That considered their lives as distinct from though often unwillingly influenced by those of history s great men In her ground breaking History of New Zealand Women Barbara Brookes provides just such a history This is more than an account of women in New Zealand from those who arrived on the first waka to the Grammy and Man Booker Prize winning young women of the current decade It is a comprehensive history of New Zealand seen through a female lens Brookes argues that while European men erected the political scaffolding to create a small nation women created the infrastructure necessary for colonial society to succeed Concepts of home marriage and family brought by settler women and integral to the developing state transformed the lives of M ori women The small scale of New Zealand society facilitated rapid change so that by the twenty first century women are no longer defined by family contexts In her long awaited book Barbara Brookes traces the factors that drove that change Her lively narrative draws on a wide variety of sources to map the importance in women s lives not just of legal and economic changes but of smaller joys such as the arrival of a piano from England or the freedom of riding a bicycle Marine Conservation Bob Earll,2018-10-08 In the last 50 years marine conservation has grown from almost nothing to become a major topic of global activity involving many people and organisations Marine conservation activities have been applied to a huge diversity of species habitats ecosystems and whole seas Many marine conservation actions have focused on human impacts on the marine environment from development and pollution to the impacts of fisheries Whilst science has provided the backbone of thinking on marine conservation perhaps the biggest change over this period has been the use of an ever increasing range of techniques and disciplines to further marine conservation ends Bob Earll explores what marine conservation involves in practice by providing a synthesis of the main developments from the viewpoints of 19 leading practitioners and pioneers who have helped shape its progress and successes Their narratives highlight the diversity and richness of activity and the realities of delivering marine conservation in practice with reference to a host of projects and case studies Many of these narratives demonstrate how innovative conservationists have been often developing novel approaches to problems where little information and no frameworks exist The case studies described are based on a wide range of European and international projects This book takes an in depth look at the reality of delivering marine conservation in practice where achieving change is often a complicated process with barriers to overcome that have nothing to do with science Marine conservationists will often be working with stakeholders for whom marine conservation is not a priority This book aims to help readers describe and understand those realities and shows that successful and inspirational projects can be delivered against the odds
