Classical Literature and Learning in Medieval Irish Narrative

Ralph O'Connor, 2014 This edited volume will make a major contribution to our appreciation of the importance of classical literature and learning in medieval Ireland and particularly to our understanding of its role in shaping the content structure and transmission of medieval Irish narrative Dr Kevin Murray Department of Early and Medieval Irish University College Cork From the tenth century onwards Irish scholars adapted Latin epics and legendary histories into the Irish language including the Imtheachta Aeniasa the earliest known adaptation of Virgil's Aeneid into any European vernacular Togail Troa a grand epic reworking of the decidedly prosaic history of the fall of Troy attributed to Dares Phrygius and at the other extreme the remarkable Merugud Uilixis meic Leirtis a fable like retelling of Ulysses's homecoming boiled down to a few hundred lines of lapidary prose Both the Latin originals and their Irish adaptations had a profound impact on the ways in which Irish authors wrote narratives about their own legendary past notably the great saga T in B C ailnge The Cattle Raid of Cooley The essays in this book explore the ways in which these Latin texts and techniques were used They are unified by a conviction that classical learning and literature were central to the culture of medieval Irish storytelling but precisely how this relationship played out is a matter of ongoing debate As a result they engage in dialogue with each other using methods drawn from a wide range of disciplines philology classical studies comparative literature translation studies and folkloristics Ralph O'Connor is Professor in the Literature and Culture of Britain Ireland and Iceland at the University of Aberdeen Contributors Abigail Burnyeat Michael Clarke Robert Crampton Helen Fulton Barbara Hillers Maire N Mhaonaigh Ralph O'Connor Erich Poppe

In Search of the Irish Dreamtime: Archaeology and Early Irish Literature

J. P. Mallory, 2016-06-14 Ireland's oldest traditions excavated via archaeological genetic and linguistic research culminating in a truly groundbreaking publication Following his account of Irish origins drawing on archaeology genetics and linguistics J. P. Mallory returns to the subject to investigate what he calls the Irish Dreamtime the native Irish retelling of their own origins as related by medieval manuscripts He explores the historical backbone of this version of the earliest history of Ireland which places apparently mythological events on a concrete timeline of invasions colonization and royal reigns that extends even further back in time than the history of classical Greece The juxtaposition of traditional Dreamtime tales and scientific facts expands on what we already know about the way of life in Iron Age Ireland By comparing the world depicted in the earliest Irish literary tradition with the archaeological evidence available on the ground Mallory explores Ireland's rich mythological tradition and tests its claims to represent reality

Memory and Remembering in Early Irish Literature

Sarah Künzler, 2023-12-04 Ireland possesses an early and exceptionally rich medieval vernacular tradition in which memory plays a key role What attitudes to remembering and forgetting are expressed in secular early Irish texts How do the texts conceptualise the past and what does this conceptualisation tell us about the present and future Who mediates and validates different versions of the past and how is future remembrance guaranteed This study approaches such questions through close readings of individual texts It centres on three major aspects of medieval Irish memory culture places and landscapes the provision of information about the past by miraculously old eye witnesses and the personal social and cultural impact of forgetting The discussions shed light on the relationship between memory and forgetting and explore the connections between the past present and future This shows the fascinating spatio temporal identity constructions in medieval Ireland and links the Irish texts to the broader European world The monograph makes this rich literary sources available to an interdisciplinary audience and is of interest to both a general medievalist audience and those working in Cultural Memory Studies Medialität und mittelalterliche insulare Literatur Hildegard L. remnant practices and revenant beliefs as constituting texts in their own right Broadly defined then text is the means by which we engage with the historical subject The medievalist however faces particular constraints in interpreting these texts through the agencies of their transmission Questions such as who authored these texts when and why intersect with problems of transcription translation and redaction to inform a complex discourse The majority of the chapters in this book started life as papers presented at a conference entitled Text and Transmission in Early Medieval Europe and the title of this book ultimately derives from that theme The subjects these chapters deal with range in geography from Ireland through to Byzantium and cover almost a millennium of European history but they are united in their effort to prise from their subjects some truths about texts transmission and the critical literacies needed to interpret both

The Oxford Handbook of Names and Naming Carole Hough, 2016-05-03 In this handbook scholars from around the world offer an up to date account of the state of the art in different areas of onomastics in a format that is both useful to specialists in related fields and accessible to the general reader Since Ancient Greece names have been regarded as central to the study of language and this has continued to be a major theme of both philosophical and linguistic enquiry throughout the history of Western thought The investigation of name origins is more recent as is the study of names in literature Relatively new is the study of names in society which draws on techniques from sociolinguistics and has gradually been gathering momentum over the last few decades The structure of this volume reflects the emergence of the main branches of name studies in roughly chronological order The first Part focuses on name theory and outlines key issues about the role of names in language focusing on grammar meaning and discourse Parts II and III deal with the study of place names and personal names respectively while Part IV outlines contrasting approaches to the study of names in literature with case studies from different languages and time periods Part V explores the field of socio onomastics with chapters relating to the names of people places and commercial products Part VI then examines the interdisciplinary nature of name studies before the concluding Part presents a selection of animate and inanimate referents ranging from aircraft to animals and explains the naming strategies adopted for them

Narration and Hero Victor Millet, Heike

Sahm, 2014-07-28 By the early middle ages vernacular aristocratic traditions of heroic narration were firmly established in Western and Northern Europe Although there are regional linguistic and formal differences one can observe a number of similarities Oral literature disseminates a range of themes that are shared by narratives in most parts of the continent In all the European regions this tradition of heroic narration came into contact with Christianity which led to modifications Similar processes of adaptation and transformation can be traced everywhere in this field of early European vernacular narrative But with the increasing specialization of academic fields over the last half century inter disciplinary dialogue has become increasingly difficult The volume is a contribution to renew the inter disciplinary dialogue about common themes topics and motifs in Nordic Roman Anglo Saxon and Germanic literature and about the different methodologies to explore them Ériu, 1992
