Drickamer, Peter J. Runge, 2011 Any university is composed of faculty students and staff But these living components change over time and in varying degrees while the campus buildings are more permanent remaining for decades a century or longer This book looks at the buildings that have graced the campus of Northern Arizona University from its opening in 1898 to the present The school began with a single building Old Main and it was joined by five other structures prior to World War I In the following decades the campus remained relatively small expanding to approximately twenty five structures by the late 1950s During the tenure of President J Lawrence Walkup 1957 1979 the university effectively doubled in size spreading southward and adding more than forty buildings including an entire south campus academic center Since 1979 the campus has witnessed the addition of more than thirty structures most as infill within the existing campus layout Arranged chronologically this extensively illustrated volume briefly describes the history of every building that has been a part of the university's physical layout The authors describe various structural aspects of each building and provide entertaining and informative anecdotes about events and people associated with the structures By combing the university's archives Drickamer and Runge have turned up photographs of each building as it looked shortly after construction and at present providing a fascinating visual time lapse With more than two hundred images of campus buildings many of them never before published Northern Arizona University Buildings as History provides a wonderful pictorial chronicle of the campus that will interest architectural historians as well as all those who have called NAU home Cumulative List of Organizations Described in Section 170 (c) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954, 2003 Cumulative List of Organizations Described in Section 170 (c) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986, 1988 Northern Arizona University Northern Arizona University, 1999 Publication, 1991 Volcanic Activity and Human Ecology Payson D. Sheets, Donald K. Grayson, 2013-09-24 Volcanic Activity and Human Ecology deals with dating chronology stratigraphy volcanic activity and with the impacts of volcanism on animals plants human populations and the environment

Some of the chapters explain how such findings must be weighed against other causes that influence human behavior and survival such as factors of social customs climatic change shifting biogeographic patterns disease and the ability to adapt Each of the chapters that assess the possible human response to volcanism does so by searching for multiple explanations of the archaeological record avoiding the simple argument that people were dramatically and inevitably overcome by catastrophic geologic events The book begins with discussions of volcanism as seen by geologists and pedologists These include s a general overview of volcanoes and volcanism a review of the production dispersal and properties of tephra and of the geologic methods used to study tephra and the nature of volcanic soils and their economic impact Subsequent chapters use the geologic and modern records to examine volcanoes as hazards to people The final series of papers deals with the interrelationships between volcanism and human occupations as seen through the archaeological paleobotanical and paleozoological records The Great Rift Valleys of Pangea in Eastern North America: Sedimentology, stratigraphy, and paleontology Peter M. Westerlund,2003-10-01 Few American towns went untouched by World War II even those in remote corners of the country During that era the federal government forever changed the lives of many northern Arizona citizens with the construction of the U S Army ordnance depot at Bellemont ten miles west of Flagstaff John Westerlund now tells how this linchpin in the war effort marked a turning point in Flagstaff s history One of only sixteen munitions depots built between 1941 and 1943 the Navajo Ordnance Depot contributed significantly to the city s rapid growth during the war years as it brought considerable social cultural and economic change to the region A clearing in the ponderosa pine forest called Volunteer Prairie met the military s criteria for a munitions depot open terrain a cool climate plentiful water and proximity to a railroad and it was also sufficiently inland to be safe from the threat of coastal invasion Constructing a depot of 800 ammunition bunkers each the size of a 2 000 square foot home called for a force of 8 000 laborers and Flagstaff became a boom town overnight as construction workers and their families poured in from nearby Indian reservations and as far away as the Midwest and South More than 2 000 were retained as permanent employees a larger workforce than Flagstaff s total pre war employment roster As Westerlund s portrait of wartime Flagstaff shows prosperity brought unanticipated consequences racism simmered beneath the surface of the town as ethnic groups were thrown together for the first time merchants called a city wide strike to protest emerging union activity juvenile delinquency rose dramatically Flagstaff women entered the workforce in unprecedented numbers altering local mores along with their own plans for the future meanwhile hundreds of sailors and marines arrived at Arizona State Teachers College to participate in the Navy s V 12 program Whether recounting the difficulty of 3 500 Navajo and Hopi employees adjusting to life off the reservation or the complaints of townspeople that Austrian POWs transferred to the depot to ease the labor shortage were treated too well Westerlund shows that the construction and maintenance of the facility was far more than a military matter Navajo Ordnance Depot remained operational to support wars in Korea Vietnam and the Persian Gulf and today Camp Navajo provides storage for thousands of deactivated ICBM motors But in recounting its early days Westerlund has skillfully blended social and military history to vividly portray not only a city s transitional years but also the impact of military expansion on economic and community development in the American West
