Shelden, 2013-12-16 Traditional portrayals of politicians in antebellum Washington D.C. describe a violent and divisive society full of angry debates and violent duels a microcosm of the building animosity throughout the country Yet in Washington Brotherhood Rachel Shelden paints a more nuanced portrait of Washington as a less fractious city with a vibrant social and cultural life Politicians from different parties and sections of the country interacted in a variety of day to day activities outside traditional political spaces and came to know one another on a personal level Shelden shows that this engagement by figures such as Stephen Douglas John Crittenden Abraham Lincoln and Alexander Stephens had important consequences for how lawmakers dealt with the sectional disputes that bedeviled the country during the 1840s and 1850s particularly disputes involving slavery in the territories Shelden uses primary documents from housing records to personal diaries to reveal the ways in which this political sociability influenced how laws were made in the antebellum era Ultimately this Washington bubble explains why so many of these men were unprepared for secession and war when the winter of 1860 61 arrived      Race and Politics in North Carolina, 1872-1901 Eric Anderson, 1980-12-01 Eric Anderson studies one of the most remarkable centers of black political influence in the late nineteenth century North Carolina's second congressional district From its creation in 1872 as a result of gerrymandering to its collapse in the extremism of 1900 the black second produced increasingly effective black leaders in public office from postmasters to prosecuting attorneys and congressmen Race and Politics in North Carolina illuminates the complex effects upon whites of the rise of black leadership both within the Republican party and in the larger community Although many white Republicans found it difficult to accept an increasing role for blacks they worked in acceptable if awkward partnership with Negro Republicans By 1900 strident appeals for white solidarity had cracked the fragile biracial unit of the Republican second district With the emergence of such Democratic leaders as Furnifold Simmons Josephus Daniels Charles B Aycock and Claude Kitchin second district men all a restrictive notion of the Negro s place in society had triumphed in North Carolina and the nation Eric Anderson s study examines regional and national history His record clarifies a confusing uneven period of promise from the emancipation to the disfranchisement of black Americans Biographical Directory of the United States Congress, 1774-2005 United States.
