Treating Drug Problems Institute of Medicine, Committee for the Substance Abuse Coverage Study, 1990-02-01 The large federal role in the drug treatment system was substantially reduced in the early 1980s undercutting its ability to help communities respond to new challenges such as the crack cocaine epidemic and the growing violence in drug markets How can drug treatment dollars be spent most equitably with the highest likelihood of beneficial results With this basic question as its focus Treating Drug Problems Volume 1 provides specific recommendations on how to organize and fund the drug treatment system Detailed attention is given to both public and private sources and their programs The book presents the latest data and analysis on these topics and more How specific approaches to drug treatment fit into drug policy including the different perspectives of the medical and criminal justice communities What is known about drug consumption behavior and what treatment approaches have proven most cost beneficial What areas need further research including specifications for increased study of treatment effectiveness and drug use by adolescents and young women Ethnocultural Factors in Substance Abuse Treatment Shulamith Lala Ashenberg Straussner, 2002-12-13 This volume presents a culturally informed framework for understanding and treating substance abuse problems From expert contributors chapters cover specific ethnocultural groups in the United States including Americans of African Native American Latino European Middle Eastern and Asian descent While emphasizing the need to see each client as a unique individual the book examines how ethnocultural factors may affect a person's attitudes toward alcohol and other drugs patterns of substance use reasons for seeking treatment and responsiveness to various interventions Themes addressed include the impact of migration and acculturation issues spiritual values and traditions family structures gender roles and experiences of prejudice and discrimination Featuring a wealth of illustrative clinical material the volume makes concrete recommendations for more competent effective assessment and intervention It also guides clinicians toward greater awareness of the ways their own ethnocultural backgrounds may affect their interactions with clients Addiction Treatment Daniel Hood, 2017-09-08 Addiction Treatment is an ethnography that compares two types of residential drug free treatment programs religious faith based programs and science based secular programs Although these programs have originated from significantly different ideological bases in examining the day to day operations of each Daniel E Hood concludes that they are far more alike than they are different Drug free treatment today whether in secular or religious form is little more than a remnant of the temperance movement It is a warning to stop using drugs At its best treatment provides practical advice and support for complete abstinence At its worst it demeans users for a form of behavior that is not well understood and threatens death if they do not stop Hood argues that there is no universal agreement on what addiction is and that drug abuse is little more than a catch all term of no specific meaning used to condemn behavior that is socially unacceptable Through extensive participatory observations intimate life history interviews and informal conversations with residents and staff Hood shows how both programs use the same basic techniques of ideological persuasion mutual witnessing methods of social control discourse deprivation and the same proposed zero tolerance abstinent lifestyle Christian living vs Right living as they endeavor to transform clients from addicts to citizens or from sinners to disciples Journal of the American Medical Association American Medical Association,1892 Principles of Addiction Medicine Richard K.
