The Starry Sky Within Anna Henchman, 2014-01-16 Tracing unexplored connections between nineteenth century astronomy and literature The Starry Sky Within offers a new understanding of literary point of view as essentially multiple mobile and comparative Nineteenth century astronomy revealed a cosmos of celestial systems in constant motion Stars comets planets and moons coursed through space in complex and changing relation As the skies were in motion so too was the human subject Astronomers showed that human beings never perceive the world from a stable position The mobility of our bodies in space and the very structure of stereoscopic vision mean that point of view is neither singular nor stable We always see the world as an amalgam of fractured perspectives In this innovative study Henchman shows that the reconceptualization of the skies gave poets and novelists new spaces in which to indulge their longing to escape the limitations of individual perspective She links astronomy and optics to the form of the multiplot novel with its many centers of consciousness complex systems of relation and criss crossing points of view Accounts of a world and a subject both in relative motion shaped the form of grand scale narratives such as Tess of the D Urbervilles Bleak House and Daniel Deronda De Quincey Tennyson and Eliot befriended leading astronomers and visited observatories while Hardy learned about astronomy from the vast popular literature of the day These writers use cosmic distances to dislodge their readers from the earth setting human perception against views from high above and then telescoping back to earth again What results is a new perception of the mobility of point of view in both literature and science 3D Movie Making Bernard Mendiburu, 2009 Hollywood is going 3D readers learn how to adapt their production skills to this hot new medium so they can be part of the movement
