Scottish Mountaineering Club Journal J.G. Scott, The New Mountaineer in Late Victorian Britain Alan

McNee, 2017-04-18 This book is about the rise of a new ethos in British mountaineering during the late nineteenth century. It traces how British attitudes to mountains were transformed by developments both within the new sport of mountaineering and in the wider fin de siècle culture. The emergence of the new genre of mountaineering literature which helped to create a self-conscious community of climbers with broadly shared values coincided with a range of cultural and scientific trends that also influenced the direction of mountaineering. The author discusses the growing preoccupation with the physical basis of aesthetic sensations and with physicality and materiality in general, the new interest in the physiology of effort and fatigue and the characteristically Victorian drive to enumerate, codify and classify. Examining a wide range of texts from memoirs and climbing club journals to hotel visitors' books, he argues that the figure known as the New Mountaineer was seen to embody a distinctly modern approach to mountain climbing and mountain aesthetics. It's a Fine Day for the Hill Adam

Watson, 2011 Adam Watson's interest in snow began at 7 the Cairngorms at 9 mountaineering and ski mountaineering in later boyhood. His book recounts many fine days on the hill in Scotland, Iceland and northern Scandinavia on foot or ski, often on his own in wonderful places that excited him beyond measure. He tells what it was like to be with four remarkable Scots who greatly influenced him as a young naturalist and mountaineer: Seton Gordon, Bob Scott, the Derry Tom, Weir and Tom Patey. The beauty and variety of the hill, the weather and the wildlife were and are an inspiration to him, and his descriptions touch on this. In these modern times of pervasive regulation and politically correct control, this book is a breath of fresh air as a proclamation of the value and wonder that are the greatest joys of lone exploration on the spur of the moment. Author Adam Watson BSc PhD DSc DUniv, raised in lowland Aberdeenshire, is a retired research ecologist aged 80. He began lifelong interests on winter snow in 1937, snow patches in 1938, the Cairngorms in 1939. A mountaineer and ski mountaineer since boyhood, he has experienced Scotland, Iceland, Norway, Sweden, mainland Canada, Newfoundland, Baffin Island, Finland, Switzerland, Italy, Vancouver Island and Alaska. His main research was and is on population biology, behaviour and habitat of northern birds and mammals. In retirement, he has contributed 16 scientific publications on snow patches since 1994. He is a Fellow of the Arctic Institute of North America, Centre for Ecology and Hydrology, Royal Meteorological Society, Royal Society of Edinburgh and Society of Biology. Since 1954, he has been a member of the Scottish Mountaineering Club, and since 1968, author of the Club's District Guide to the Cairngorms. This book is testimony to the idea that exploring for yourself by your own free will, without formal courses or training, is the best joy the hills can give. Preface, The Cairngorms, 1975. Now I would add, without detailed planning, for my best days have been lone trips begun without such planning, indeed on the spur of the moment and weather, almost chance events. Four chapters salute Scots to whom I owed much as a young naturalist and
