Hamid Jahankhani, Kenneth Revett, Dominic Palmer-Brown, 2008-06-21 In today's society where technology is ubiquitous protecting ourselves with firewalls is as important as defending ourselves with firepower. New technology is providing criminals with a world of opportunity while law enforcement agencies all over the world are struggling to cope. E security is an issue of global importance. In many ways cybercrime is no different to more traditional types of crime both involve identifying targets using surveillance and psychological profiling of potential victims. The major difference is that the perpetrators of cybercrime are increasingly remote to the scene of their crime and that in some cases their victims may not even realize that a crime is taking place. Knowledge of the techniques being used by criminals and the technology and training available to combat them is essential in fighting cybercrime. Establishing dialogue between crime fighting agencies, the security industry, researchers and experts can provide a platform from which e security can be examined from several global perspectives.

The book consists of 11 chapters. Chapter 1 locates intellectual property rights within the armoury of food security policies. Chapter 2 deals with definitional issues and examines the role of intellectual property rights in incentivizing agricultural research and development. Chapter 3 examines the international landscape of intellectual property and the approaches taken to the relationship between intellectual property rights, agricultural biotechnology, access to biological resources, food security and globalization which are taken by the WTO, FAO, CBD and WIPO among the various international and development agencies. Plant variety rights (PVRs) are a specially created form of intellectual property right originally minted to encourage agricultural innovation and Chapter 4 examines the effectiveness of PVRs in a food security context. Agricultural innovation is in part dependent upon access of researchers to the genetic resources of the biodiverse countries of the South Chapter 5 considers the attempts to construct an international regime to secure this access The important role of traditional farmers in preserving landraces and cultivars from which improvements can be derived has generated for a call for the recognition of farmers rights and this is examined in Chapter 6 together with agitation for the protection of the traditional knowledge which often informs access to the useful genetic resources Chapter 7 examines the intellectual property implications of the use of genetically modified GM crops as a technological solution to food insecurity The protection of GM crops is achieved through patent protection and Chapter 9 looks at the competition law implications of patent licensing patent pools and patent thickets An old intellectual property device that underpinned the commercial development of European agricultural marketing is the geographical indication and Chapter 8 examines the contribution it might make to achieving food security Returning to the theme of the role of intellectual property law in incentivizing innovation Chapter 10 examines its role in promoting agricultural research The concluding chapter proposes a number of recommendations for action in deploying intellectual property law in the struggle for food security
