Mitchener, 2021-07-28 On November 20 1943 the U S military invaded the Tarawa Atoll of the Gilbert Islands as part of the first American offensive in the Central Pacific region during World War II This invasion marked more than one first as it was also the introductory test of a doctrine developed during the interwar years to address problems inherent in situations in which amphibious assaults required support by naval gunfire rather than land based artillery In this detailed study Donald K Mitchener documents and analyzes the prewar development of this doctrine as well as its application and evolution between the years 1943 1945 The historical consensus is that the test at Tawara was successful and increased the efficiency with which U S forces were able to apply the doctrine in the Pacific theater for the remainder of the Second World War Mitchener challenges this view arguing that the reality was much more complex He reveals that strategic concerns often took precedence over the lessons learned in the initial engagement and that naval planners failure to stay up to date with the latest doctrinal developments and applications sometimes led them to ignore these lessons altogether U S Naval Gunfire Support in the Pacific War presents an important analysis that highlights the human cost of misinterpreting strategic and tactical realities     The Marshalls United States. Rottman,2011-03-15 A highly illustrated account of the Pacific operation that was at the time the longest shore to shore amphibious assault in history Following the capture of Tarawa in November 1943 American eyes turned to the Marshall Islands These were the next vital stepping stone across the Pacific towards Japan and would bring the islands of Guam and Saipan within the reach of US forces In their first amphibious attack the new 4th Marine Division landed on Roi and Namur islands on 1 February 1944 while US 7th Division landed on Kwajalein In this compact detailed volume Gordon L Rottman demonstrates that the lessons of the bloody fighting on Tarawa had been well learned and the successful attack on the Marshalls set the pattern for future amphibious operations in the Pacific War     United States Army in World War II. The Corps of Engineers Karl Christian Dod,1966 Engineer operations in support of the U S Army in the war against Japan Begins with the defense build up in 1939 and ends with the Japanese surrender The author has attempted not only to depict various types of Engineer operations but also to indicate how Engineer work helped implement Allied strategy From the Preface Eagle Against the Sun Ronald H. Spector, 2020-11-03 The best book by far on the Pacific War The New York Times Book Review this classic one volume history of World War II in the Pacific draws on declassified intelligence files British American and Japanese archival material and military memoirs to provide a stunning and complete history of the conflict This superbly readable insightful gripping Washington Post Book World contribution to WWII history combines impeccable research with electrifying detail and offers provocative interpretations of this brutal forty four month struggle Author and historian Ronald H Spector reassesses US and Japanese strategy and shows that the dual advance across the Pacific by MacArthur and Nimitz was more a pragmatic solution to bureaucratic doctrinal and public relations problems facing the Army and Navy than a strategic calculation He also argues that Japan made its fatal error not in the Midway campaign but in abandoning its offensive strategy after that defeat and allowing itself to be drawn into a war of attrition Spector skillfully takes us from top secret strategy meetings in Washington London and Tokyo to distant beaches and remote Asian jungles with battle weary GIs He reveals that the US had secret plans to wage unrestricted submarine warfare against Japan months before Pearl Harbor and shows that MacArthur and his commanders ignored important intercepts of Japanese messages that would have saved thousands of lives in Papua and Leyte Throughout Spector contends that American decisions in the Pacific War were shaped more often by the struggles between the British and the Americans and between the Army and the Navy than by strategic considerations Spector vividly recreates the major battles little known campaigns and unfamiliar events leading up to the deadliest air raid ever adding a new dimension to our understanding of the American war in the Pacific and the people and forces that determined its outcome
