Merchants And Migrants Ethnicity And Trade Among Yunnanese Chinese In Southeast Asia:

Merchants and Migrants Ann Maxwell Hill,1998 The Chinese Diaspora in South-East Asia Tracy C.

Barrett,2012-02-22 As Qing Dynasty China disintegrated economic hardship and civil disorder led to millions of Chinese men and women seeking their fortunes abroad many journeying south into French Indochina These emigres settled into tight knit communities called huiguan organisations which closely mirrored the religious social and economic constitution of their own places of origin Here Tracy Barrett sheds light on the overseas Chinese communities in French Indochina and the interactions between them and French colonial authorities She also addresses the nature scope and effectiveness of the congregation system an institution designed by the French to control Indochina s overseas Chinese but eventually extended across the greater French empire as a means of monitoring foreign Asiatics Including a close analysis of French colonial law and of the economic and social networks between Chinese settler communities across Indonesia The Chinese Diaspora in South East Asia provides an important insight into the characteristics of Chinese migration Chinese Capitalism in Southeast Asia Yos Santasombat,2017-09-04 This collection examines the historically and geographically specific form of economic organization of the overseas Chinese in Southeast Asia and how it has adapted to the different historical and socio political contexts of Southeast Asian countries Moving beyond cultural explanations and traits to focus on the process of evolution and dynamism of situated practices it argues that Chinese Capitalism is rapidly becoming a form of hybrid capitalism and embodies the interdependent of culturally and institutionally specific dynamics at local and regional level evolving and adapting to different institutional contexts and politico economic conditions in the host Asian economies This text also explores the social organization and political economy of the so called overseas Chinese by examining the changing dynamism of Chinese capitalism in relation to forces of globalization Focusing on key actors primarily Chinese entrepreneurs in their business practices and situated practices as well as cultural political social and economic factors under globalizing conditions it provides providing a broad understanding without fixating or homogenizing Chinese capitalism contributing to the understanding of the contexts that give rise to the emergence and transformation of Chinese Capitalism in Southeast Asia

Rising China and New Chinese Migrants in Southeast Asia Leo Suryadinata,Benjamin Loh,2022-11-28 New Chinese migration is a recent development that has just entered an initial phase An overarching theme and conclusion across the sixteen chapters in this volume is that China s policy towards Chinese migrants has changed from period to period and it is still too early for us to determine if Beijing will continue to pursue the policy of luoye guigen return to original roots or will revert to one of luodi shenggen sink into local roots The various chapters also show that the profile motivations and outlooks of xin yimin new Chinese migrants have become more diverse while local reactions to these new migrants have become less accommodating with increasing nationalism The Chinese [migr]s of Thailand in the Twentieth Century Disaphol Chansiri,2008 examines Thai Chinese relations dating back to the first Thai dynasty Sukhothai to the present Ratanakosin

The study explores the Thai domestic policies that have affected the Chinese population since World War II and assimilation policies of the Thai government towards the Chinese This book also analyzes both Skinner s and Chan and Tong s arguments and their main idea in the context of the present day environment and situation for the ethnic Chinese This research supports the Skinnerian paradigm which asserts that a majority of the descendants of Chinese immigrants in each generation merge with Thai society and become indistinguishable from the indigenous population to the extent that fourth generation Chinese are practically non existent The validation of the Skinnerian paradigm rejects Chan and Tong s hypothesis which claims that Skinner has overemphasized the forces of assimilation and that the Chinese in Thailand have not assimilated but retained their Chinese identity To support Skinner s assertion and reject Chan and Tong s argument this book presents rich empirical data collected via surveys conducted with the ethnic Chinese in Thailand from 2003 2004 This study uncovers that the forces of assimilation occur at two levels On the first level the Chinese in Thailand possess natural attributes which facilitate social and cultural integration and assimilation into Thai society On the second level government pro assimilation policies driven by the bilateral relations between Thailand and China and the political situation in both countries are also responsible for the assimilation of the Chinese in Thailand As the most current in depth study on the Chinese in Thailand The Chinese migr s of Thailand in the Twentieth Century is a critical addition for all collections in Asian Studies as well as Ethnic and Immigrant Studies

Little Buddhas Vanessa R. Sasson,2013 Consideration of children in the academic field of Religious Studies is taking root but Buddhist Studies has yet to take notice Little Buddhas brings together a wide range of scholarship and expertise to address the question of what role children have played in Buddhist literature in particular historical contexts and what role they continue to play in specific Buddhist contexts today The volume is divided into two parts one addressing the representation of children in Buddhist texts the other children and childhoods in Buddhist cultures around the world The ground breaking contributions in this volume challenge the perception of irreconcilable differences between Buddhist idealism and family ties Little Buddhas will be an indispensable resource for students and scholars of Buddhism and Childhood Studies and a catalyst for further research on the topic

Educating Monks Thomas A. Borchert, 2017-05-31 Most studies of Buddhist communities tend to be limited to villages individual temple communities or a single national community Buddhist monastics however cross a number of these different framings They are part of local communities are governed through national legal frameworks and participate in both national and transnational Buddhist networks Educating Monks makes visible the ways Buddhist communities are shaped by all of the above collectively and often simultaneously Educating Monks examines a minority Buddhist community in Sipsongpann a region located on China's southwest border with Myanmar and Laos Its people the Dai lue are double minorities They are recognized by the Chinese state as part of a minority group and they practice Theravada Buddhism a minority form within China where Mahayana Buddhism is the norm Theravada has long been the primary training ground for Dai lue men and since the return of Buddhism to the area in the years following Mao Zedong's death the Dai lue have put many of their resources into providing monastic education for their sons However the author's analysis of institutional organization within Sipsongpann the governance of religion there and the movements of monks revealing the ethnoscape that the monks of Sipsongpann participate in points to educational contexts that depend not just on local villagers but also resources from the local Communist government and aid from Chinese Mahayana monks and Theravada monks from Thailand and Myanmar While the Dai lue monks draw on these various resources for the development of the sangha they do not share the same agenda and must continually engage in a careful political dance between villagers who want to revive traditional forms of Buddhism a Chinese state that is at best indifferent to the continuation of Buddhism and transnational monks that want to import their own modern forms of Buddhism into the region Based on ethnographic fieldwork and interviews with Dai lue monks in China Thailand and Singapore this ambitious and sophisticated study will find a ready audience among students and scholars of the anthropology of Buddhism and religion education and transnationalism in Southeast and East Asia

Mien Relations Hjørleifur

Jonsson,2018-07-05 Thailand's hill tribes have been the object of anthropological research cultural tourism and government intervention for a century in large part because these groups are held to have preserved distinctive ethnic traditions despite their contacts with modern culture Hjørleifur Jonsson rejects the conventional notion that the worlds of traditional peoples are being transformed or undone by the forces of modernity Among the Mien people of northern Thailand he finds a complex highlander identity that has been shaped by a thousand years of interaction in a multiethnic contact zone In Mien Relations Jonsson suggests that as early as the thirteenth century the growing influence of Chinese and Thai state authority had led to a peculiarly urban understanding of the hinterlands the forests and the mountains as an area beyond state control and the rhetoric of civilization Mountain peoples became understood as a distinct social type an idea elaborated by government classification systems in the late nineteenth and early twentieth centuries Their discovery by Western anthropologists is he suggests merely one more episode influencing Mien identity Jonsson questions traditional ethnography's focus on fieldwork and personal observation and its concomitant blindness to political manipulation and to historical formation Throughout Mien Relations he revisits long neglected connections between China and Southeast Asia combines ancient history and contemporary ethnography engages with the serious politics of representation without abandoning the quest to write ethnographically about particular communities and keeps state control in view without assuming its success or coherence

Yunnan-A Chinese Bridgehead to Asia Tim Summers,2013-05-15 The Chinese Government's five year strategy for social and economic development to 2015 includes the aim of making the southwestern province of Yunnan a bridgehead for opening the country to southeast Asia and south Asia Yunnan A Chinese Bridgehead to Asia traces the dynamic process which has led to this policy goal a process through which Yunnan is being repositioned from a southwestern periphery of the People's Republic of China to a bridgehead between China and its regional neighbours It shows how this has been expressed in ideas and policy frameworks involvement in regional institutions infrastructure development and changing trade and investment flows from the 1980s to the present Detailing the wider context of the changes in China's global interactions especially in Asia the book uses Yunnan's case to demonstrate the extent of provincial agency in global interactions in reform era China and provides new insights into both China's relationships with its Asian neighbours and the increasingly important economic engagement between developing countries Offers a new perspective on Yunnan Contains historical depth understanding the background and developments over time means that this China watching book will not date quickly Takes a provincial view of China's international relations

China on the Sea Zheng Yangwen,2011-10-14 Generations of Chinese scholars have made China synonymous with the Great Wall and presented its civilization as fundamentally land bound This volume challenges this perspective demonstrating that China was not a Walled Kingdom certainly not since the Yongjia Disturbance in 311 China reached out to the maritime world far more actively than historians have acknowledged while the seas and what came from the seas from Islam fragrances and Jesuits to maize opium and clocks significantly changed the course of history and have been of inestimable importance to China since the Ming This book integrates the maritime history of China especially the Qing period a subject which has hitherto languished on the periphery of scholarly analysis into the mainstream of current historical narrative It was the seas that made Tang China a Cosmopolitan Empire Mark Lewis the Song dynasty China s Greatest Age John Fairbank China at 1600 the largest and most sophisticated of all unified realms on earth Jonathan Spence and the reign of the three Qing emperors Kangxi Yongzheng and Qianlong China s last golden age Charles Hucker
