MERCOSUR Economic Integration ASEAN Studies Centre, 2009 In January 1992 the leaders of ASEAN gathered for their fourth summit meeting to sign an agreement called the Common Effective Preferential Tariff for the creation of the ASEAN Free Trade Area The significance of this step arose notably from the fact that it formally marked the shift of the ASEAN economic enterprise from one of economic cooperation to one towards economic integration Among the spurs that goaded ASEAN to undertake the shift was the rise of economic regionalism in several other parts of the world One of those regions was the southern cone of Latin America where the Treaty of Asuncin had been signed in 1991 to create the Mercado Comn del Sur MERCOSUR or Common Market of the South Recently ASEAN has sought political and economic linkages not only with Latin America as a whole through the Rio Group at the United Nations or through the Forum for East Asian and Latin Americal Cooperation FEALAC but also more narrowly and directly with MERCOSUR At their July 2008 meeting the ASEAN foreign ministers announced the decision to hold the inaugural ASEAN MERCOSUR Ministerial Meeting in Brasilia on 24 November 2008 It is in this light that the ASEAN Studies Centre of the Institute of Southeast Asian Studies in Singapore requested the United Nations Economic Commission for Latin America and the Caribbean and Dr Pang Eul Soo and Dr Laura Jarnagin professors in Colorado School of Mines in the United States to do two separate studies from two different viewpoints on the experience of MERCOSUR and on the lessons that experience may hold for ASEAN

The National versus the Foreigner in South America Diego Acosta, 2018-05-24 Since the turn of the century, South American governments and regional organisations have adopted the world's most open discourse on migration and citizenship. At a time when restrictive choices were becoming increasingly predominant around the world, South American policymakers presented their discourse as being both an innovative and exceptional new paradigm and part of a morally superior avant-garde path in policymaking. This book provides a critical examination of the South American legal framework through a historical and comparative analysis. Diego Acosta uses this analysis to assess whether the laws are truly innovative and exceptional, as well as evaluating their feasibility, strengths and weaknesses. By analysing the legal construction of the national and the foreigner in ten South American countries during the last two centuries, he demonstrates how different citizenship and migration laws have functioned, as well as showing why states have opted for certain regulation choices and the consequence of these choices for state and nation building in the continent. An invaluable insight for anyone interested in global migration and citizenship discussions.

The Dynamics of Regional Migration Governance Andrew

Geddes, Marcia Vera Espinoza, Leila Hadj Abdou, Leiza Brumat, 2019 This book analyses the dynamics of regional migration governance and accounts for why, how and with what effects states cooperate with each other in diverse forms of regional grouping on aspects of international migration, displacement and mobility. The book develops a framework for analysis of comparative regional migration governance to support a distinct and truly global approach, accounting for developments in Africa Asia Pacific Central Asia Europe the Middle East North America and South America and the many and varying forms that regional arrangements can take in these regions Negotiating Trade Liberalization in Argentina and Chile

Andrea C. Bianculli, 2016-12-08 How do international negotiations affect domestic politics Starting in the 1990s countries throughout Latin America embarked on many and simultaneous negotiations On the shifting ground of widening and deepening trade agendas and diverse arenas what factors determined trade politics This book examines the domestic political dynamics triggered by South South North South and multilateral agendas in Argentina and Chile between 1990 and 2005 Using a much needed cross negotiation and cross country comparative perspectives and through detailed empirical analyses of several key negotiations it proposes an explanation that emphasizes the interplay between international negotiations and domestic trade politics taken as the result of the complex and dynamic interdependencies and interrelations between state and society Informed by interviews with public officials businesses and civil society the analysis reveals that variation in the depth of agendas the distributional effects and the uncertainty of political outcomes all have important consequences for domestic preference formation collective action strategies and types of relationships Given this the variety of negotiations when considered separately and comparatively show that South South North South and multilateral processes promote different patterns of trade politics In sum although national specificities and historical legacies are important the book argues that trade policy comes first in creating domestic politics in Latin America The EU and World

Regionalism Dr Michael Schulz, Dr Philippe De Lombaerde, 2013-03-28 Much has been said about the driving forces of region building processes or regionalization worldwide yet few systematic and comparative studies have been conducted on how regions can contribute to the building of other regions and more concretely how the European Union has pushed for regionalization worldwide This comparative book investigates the impact that the EU has on regionalization elsewhere through its inter regional relations Covering agriculture trade ASEAN NAFTA MERCOSUR and Commonwealth amongst other topics it investigates whether the EU contributes directly as well as indirectly to increased regional integration in different parts of the world
