Merry On Little Things:

Merry Little Things Linda Shantz, 2022-01-02 Christmas has always been Emilie's favorite time of year but this one's shaping up to be different. With her parents rekindling old family ties in Montreal and her sister celebrating with future in-laws out west, she's facing her first solo holiday season on the family's bustling Thoroughbred farm. But who has time to feel lonely? Between juggling her physiotherapy internship, exercising horses, helping at her friend's cozy caf   and dreaming of adopting the perfect furry companion, Emilie's plate is more than full. Then the farm manager's sudden departure sends her carefully balanced world spinning until she accepts that sometimes the best Christmas gift isn't found under the tree; it's in letting others share the load. A parallel book to This Good Thing Good Things Come Book 4 or can be read as a standalone. Bonus includes a recipe for Nanaimo bars, a favourite Canadian treat, and the first chapter of All The Best Things, the continuation of Emilie's story. Read the whole series: Bright Broken Things, Good Things Come Prequel Book 0, 5 Good Things Come, Good Things Come Book 1, All The Little Things, Good Things Come Book 2, All Good Things, Good Things Come Book 3, This Good Thing Good Things Come Book 4, Merry Little Things, Good Things Come Book 5, All The Best Things, Good Things Come Book 6, Horse of the Year, Good Things Come Book 7, Shiny Little Things, Good Things Come Book 8, All The Right Things, Good Things Come Book 9. Merry's Museum and Parley's Magazine, 1869 The Rose, Thistle and Shamrock, 1857

Hauschatz der britischen Dichtkunst Gantter,1864 The Silver Dial (Complete) Mary Catherine

Rowse,2020-09-28 Long ago there lived in the city of Strassburg a worthy burgher named Christian Dasipodius Very highly esteemed was this man by his fellow citizens and there were few among them who had not an approving word for him This was a little remarkable inasmuch as Christian was by no means a rich man It is true that he had a goodly house of his own and wore his fur bordered gown of stout murrey cloth with the best of them and held his head high among the wealthiest of his merchant brethren looking every inch the honest trader in skins and furs that he was Still comparatively Christian Dasipodius was poor he had not contrived after the wont of so many of his fraternity to lay up much goods for many years In earlier life he had met with one or two heavy pecuniary losses and afterwards when Fortune did smile on him and everybody said that now Christian really bade fair to be a rich man there began to develop in him some rather rare characteristics He found it for example so utterly impossible to pass unheeding by a distressed fellow creature or to withhold any help it was in his power to afford strugglers up the hill of life If some poor but honest young apprentice whose years of servitude had just expired chanced to cross his path and Christian saw him painfully toiling to amass the little capital necessary for setting himself up in his craft he immediately began to think of his own once meagre purse and how to him in early days a friend in need would have been a friend indeed and then he would come forward with a word of encouragement on his lips and nice little gold pieces in his hand which the recipient was to repay only at some date quite convenient to himself Now and then it happened this convenient date was so long a coming that Christian knew he would have to bid farewell for ever and a day to his gold pieces but then he always consoled himself with the reflection that if his generosity had been misplaced or went otherwise unrequited it was far oftener his privilege to see those to whom he had afforded such timely aid pushing on with a lighter heart and better courage It is perhaps needless to reiterate that Christian s generosity had not made him a richer man by so much dross sterling but it did make the pure metal of his nature shine out through his eyes and in his kindly smile and perhaps there was not to be found in all Strassburg a happier more thoroughly contented minded man than Christian but this was before his great sorrow fell upon him a sorrow in whose presence all his pecuniary trials and losses faded to nothingness the death of his wife Christian who was a handsome fellow and might have chosen pretty nearly where he would from among the maidens of his native city had with that perversity innate in the masculine mind chosen to fall in love with a beautiful Lorraine woman whom he married One son was born to them This boy while inheriting his father s tall well knit figure and manly features was endowed also with much of his mother s soft intelligent beauty and as the boy whom they christened Conrad grew up it was small wonder that the parents were very proud of their only child At an unusually early age Conrad evinced a talent for figures and geometry and an affection for Euclid which mightily astonished his schoolmates His mother marking the bent of the boy s mind bade her husband mark it too and Christian with something of a sigh for he would so infinitely have preferred to discover in him a talent for skin dressing said Good let it be so then and I will spare nothing that Conrad may learn all he seems to have such a fancy for Mathematics is a grand science and has made men famous and honourable only he must work And Conrad did work and his mother watched him with a proud thrilling heart longing earnestly for that day when her son should take his place among the great and learned of their city But years many years ere that day could come the mother s heart had ceased to throb and her marvellously beautiful eyes were closed in death A sharp brief illness carried her away from Christian and her child and the two were left alone to fight their life s battle together
