Creating a Dialectical Social Science I.I. Mitroff, R.O. Mason, 2012-12-06 The depth intensity and long standing nature of the disagreements between differing schools of social thought renders more critical than ever the treatment of dialectical reasoning and its relationship to the social sciences The nature of these disagreements are deeply rooted in fundamentally differing beliefs regarding among many things 1 the nature of man 2 the role of theory versus data in constructing social theories 3 the place and function of values versus facts in inquiry etc It has become more and more apparent that such fundamental differences cannot be resolved by surface appeals to rationality or to consensus Such for it is precisely the definitions of appeals are doomed to failure rationality and consensus that are at odds That is different schools not only have different definitions of rationality and consensus but different notions regarding their place and function within a total system of inquiry A dialectical treatment of conflicts is called for because such conflicts demand a method which is capable of recognizing first of all how deep they lie Secondly a method is demanded which is capable of appreciating that the various sides of the conflict fundamentally depend on one another for their very existence they depend in other words on one another not in spite of their opposition but precisely because of it

Sherman,William R. Torbert,2012-12-06 John F Kerry United States Senator If we are to reinvigorate and reinforce civic participation in this country at a time when our society is increasingly fragmented and highly technologically based we must find a way to unite distinct communities such as universities regional and non profit organizations and families We must find ways to link academicians students teachers and professionals with the reality of events and circumstances so that theories and ideas mightily pursued within the ivory tower are connected to social reality and useful As the editors and contributors in this volume point out the way to bridge theory practice divide is not merely to interpret and report on circumstances of the real world but rather to deconstruct the separate and distinct communities that exist within our society and actively engage other communities to realize a continuum of mutual understanding collaboration and action It is crucial to include our nation's public schools in this new approach of social inquiry and social action Improving and creating educational opportunity for all children in the United States has been an ongoing critical federal issue We know that when children achieve in school they have a much greater chance of living healthy productive adult lives that will benefit themselves and society and we know that increasing the base of stakeholders in children's education yields those positive results     Wisdom and Humanness in Psychology C. Stromquist,Michael L. Basile,2003-08-29 In the educational arena new ideas often compete as solutions to recurrent problems making the concept of innovations a widespread discursive term While expectations are substantial for each innovation implementation of ideas has shown them to be more modest in practice This book examines innovations in several developing countries presenting case studies of technological curricular and organizational innovations selected for their magnitude in financial investment scope and duration The case studies explore the social and political contexts that shaped the features of these innovations and what they accomplished over time in terms of teacher cost reduction status mobility access to education and national unity The experience of countries such as Brazil Lesotho the Philippines and Namibia and the influence of international agencies such as the World Bank are described and analyzed against theories of social and organizational change The case studies themselves also serve as subjects for reflection on the prevailing positivist approaches to research and knowledge. The Politics of Educational Innovations should be of considerable interest to students of educational change within the academic world or in the fields of government and international cooperation.      Becoming a Practitioner Researcher

Paul Barber, 2006-05-01 Employing a Gestalt approach that places investigators in the center of their own practice, this is an indispensable guide for anyone undertaking inquiries in complex or changing organizational settings. The Critical Turn in Tourism Studies Irena Ateljevic, Annette Pritchard, Nigel Morgan, 2007-03-15 New approaches to tourism study demonstrate a notable critical turn, a shift in thought that emphasises interpretative and critical modes of tourism inquiry. The chapters in this volume reflect this emerging critical school of tourism studies and represent a coordinated effort of tourism scholars whose work engages innovative research methodologies. Since such work has been dispersed across a variety of tourism related and other research fields, this book responds to a pressing need to consolidate recent advances in a single text. Adopting a broad definition of criticality, the contributors seek to find fresh ways of theorising tourism by locating the phenomenon in its wider political, economic, cultural, and social contexts. The collection addresses the power relations underpinning the production of academic knowledge, presents a range of qualitative data collection methods which confront the field's dominant post-positivist approaches, foregrounds the emotional dynamics of research relations, and explores the personal, the political, and the situated nature of research journeys. The book has been divided into two parts, with the essays in the first part establishing a context specific framework for engaging philosophical and theoretical debates in contemporary tourism enquiry. The second set of essays then present, discuss, and critique specific methodologies, research techniques, methods of interpretation, and writing strategies, all of which are in some sense illustrative of critical tourism research. Contributors range from postgraduate students to established academics and are drawn from both the geopolitical margins and the powerbases of the tourism academy. Their various relationships with the English speaking academy thus range from relative outsider to well positioned insider, and as a result, their essays are reflective of a range of locations within the complexly spun web of academic power relations and social divisions.      New Racism

Norma Romm, 2010-07-08 This book develops a debate around responsible social inquiry into new racism. A variety of ways of researching new forms of racism, for example, aversive modern cultural, purportedly color blind, and new racism, are addressed. Experiments that have been undertaken to inquire into group identity and people's implicit bias in relation to those perceived as other are critically explored and their potential consequences reconsidered The book also critically explores survey research which it is argued can serve to reinforce the notion of the existence of ethnoracial groups with defined boundaries that inhere in social life The book considers interviewing including focus group interviewing and case study research including participant observation ethnography in terms of possibilities for moving beyond new forms of racism Action research defined by the understanding of an inextricable link between knowing and acting is examined in depth in terms of the hopes to make a difference at the moment of inquiry Types of retroductive logic that are used to examine underlying structures that arguably unduly constrain people s life chances and render human relationships inhumane are also explored The book draws together the different arguments and it proposes ways in which the design of research into new racism can better approached as well as ways in which dialogue around processes of inquiry and the products thereof can be better fostered Suggestions for nurturing humane social relationships that provide for transcultural meaning making are threaded through the text

Researching Life Stories Peter Clough, Dan Goodley, Rebecca Lawthom, Michelle Moore, 2004-04-29 It has long been argued that an age of biography is upon us certainly the life story now has a well recognised role as a key resource in social research This book is the first to offer a comprehensive and practical guide to carrying out
