families and within certain individuals Is crime the manifestation of an inherited latent trait or the result of a failure of socialization and norm setting processes Why do youths commit crimes Delinquency and Crime contains essays by nine leading criminologists that seek to answer these and other questions by describing current theories of crime and the research evidence that supports them The authors views on crime causation go beyond traditional criminological theories of strain cultural deviance social control differential association and social learning to present emerging and integrated models of the origins of crime including antisocial peer socialization social development interactional theory behavior genetics and community determinants Each essay explores the practical implication of the authors theoretical work for crime prevention and control

Age, Time, and Fertility Mary B. Breckenridge, 2013-10-22 Age Time and Fertility Applications of Exploratory Data Analysis describes change in the age pattern of fertility that responds to a specific need in making fertility comparisons across time and place This book discusses a modeling process based on Tukey s exploratory data analysis EDA methods which is proved very effective in other fields for detecting underlying patterns even in flawed data The first part of this text provides an introduction to the philosophy and tools of EDA and to the data analyzed examining in detail the process of developing and standardizing the closely fitting few parameter descriptions of demographic change in time sequence The rest of the chapters examine the results and applications of fertility modeling and establish relations between change in the age pattern of fertility and level of fertility This publication is intended for those interested in the measures and methods of fertility change that can be applied to demographic data

Social Accounting Systems F. Thomas Juster, Kenneth C Land, 2013-09-03 Social Accounting Systems Essays on the State of the Art contains essays prepared during a workshop aimed at the development and promulgation of objectives for future work on social accounting and the making of recommendations to achieve them by evaluating existing demographic and time based accounting models The essays describe and evaluate the state of the art of extant empirically based approaches to social accounting The book opens with an overview chapter that describes the organizations of the Workshop on Social Accounting Systems at which the essays were presented and discussed the nature of the tasks assigned to authors and the major themes of workshop discussions This is followed by separate chapters on time based social accounting systems and demographic accounting how subjective social indicators can be related to social accounting systems and general evaluations of the systems described in the previous chapters This book will be primarily of interest to social scientists and statisticians concerned with the development and integration of national data systems and with social indicator analyses They also will be germane to the interests of students of contemporary social change and the quality of life

Religious Assortative Marriage Robert Alan Johnson, 2013-10-22 Religious Assortative Marriage in the United States aims to formulate and apply to American religious data macrosociological models of assortative marriage in pluralistic populations These models postulate that the factors determining assortative marriage are population structure social divisions and norms of endogamy An important application of these models is to counter the ideological assumption implicit in the popular image of a melting pot of nations that the amalgamation of groups in the marriage market is the inevitable outcome of a historical plan of assimilation The book begins by establishing a demographic framework by embedding assortative marriage in a broader model of the replacement of religious composition This is followed by separate chapters on specialized theories concerned with the social determinants of assortative marriage available religious marital selection data in the United States and regional residential and cohort differentials in assortative marriage The final chapter discusses how the general marriage market model that is sufficiently flexible to be broadly applicable to diverse structures of religious or other assortative marriage can be mathematically manipulated to generate laws of social statics and dynamics

Valuing the Cost of Smoking Claude Jeanrenaud,Nils C. Soguel,2012-12-06 CLAUDEJEANRENAUD NILS SOGUEL Smoking is a very common habit all over the world The prevalence rate ranges from 20% 40% in industrialised countries and is dramatically increasing in the developing world Smoking is risky and there is ample scientific evidence to support this statement We know that smoking is a major cause of disease and premature death in view of the fact that 3 million people die each year worldwide as a result of their smoking habit Twenty years ago the U S Surgeon General identified smoking as the single most important cause of morbidity and premature death USDHEW 1979 Tobacco consnmption reduces life expectancy vastly Epidemiological research shows that people who have died from a smoking related disease would on average have lived for an additional 15 years had they not been smokers Warner 1987 The economic analysis of tobacco consumption is a complex and challenging issue which entails addressing many different questions What is the economic burden of smoking and do smokers pay their way How do individuals perceive their own health risks What is the effect of the addicting properties of nicotine on the behaviour of a rational utility maximizing individual Lastly what is the most effective way to discourage tobacco consumption In this context the assessment of the social burden of smoking using a cost of illness framework has played a central role since the beginning of the seventies
