Co-design for a New East Asia After the Crisis H. Hirakawa,Y.-H. Kim,2012-12-06 East Asia enjoyed a role as a growth center of the world economy from the 1960s until the currency and economic crisis of 1997 In 1993 the World Bank issued a report entitled The East Asian Miracle Economic Growth and Public Policy in which the bank expressed its admiration for the region s rapid economic develop ment However within only four years the region had fallen prey to the currency and economic crisis that spread outward from Thailand In the midst of the crisis many East Asian countries began at long last to cooperate with one another in order to cope with these unprecedented difficulties and to prevent another crisis In fact the East Asian region was an exception throughout the 1990s with re spect to regionalism A surge of regionalism which began in Europe in the second half ofthe 1980s spread to North America and Latin America However the North east Asian region in particular consisting of Japan China People s Republic of China and Korea Republic of Korea did not participate in any kind of regional economic arrangements Regional cooperation frameworks were limited to coun tries belonging to the Association of Southeast Asian Nations ASEAN and did not spread to the Northeast Asian region in Northeast Asia Nathalie Aminian,Cuauhtemoc Calderon,2010 In contrast to developments in other world regions efforts to institutionalize regional economic cooperation in East Asia have been weak Though Southeast Asian economies have taken action toward trade liberalization ASEAN Free Trade Area the major economies of the region such as China Japan and Korea have not been part of any formal trade groupings until recently However given the slow pace of progress within AFTA and the importance of the Northeast Asian countries in terms of weight in the Asian economy a de facto Northeast Asian economic cooperation is a necessary condition for East Asian integration This paper investigates the substance of recent economic cooperation in Northeast Asia The trilateral economic cooperation is analyzed through examination of trade and direct investment links for 1990 2004 and estimation of selected determinants of direct investment in particular the relationship between trade and FDI Estimation results suggest that the main driving forces for direct investment outflows from the source country have been the falling off of exchange rate risk the level of the nominal bilateral exchange rates growth rate of the recipient country and the per capita GDP gap between source and host countries Bilateral trade has been shown to be statistically insignificant
