Jenna Grace Sciuto, 2025-01-15 Intersecting Worlds Colonial Liminality in US Southern and Icelandic Literatures recalibrates readings of US southern and American writers by exploring comparable depictions of race colonialism Whiteness gender and sexuality in Icelandic literature This book explores the liminality ambiguity and general unease that result when postcolonial theories are applied to both Iceland and the US South It investigates the parallels and also the limitations to such comparisons with the labels and binaries created to represent colonial dynamics flattening the complex positionings of Iceland and the US South Iceland an independent nation since 1944 has a complex colonial history As a former dependency of Denmark that endured a US military presence from 1941 to 2006 Iceland's global positioning invites comparisons to formerly colonized spaces At the same time Iceland's history and geopolitical location differ from other colonized nations which were subject to brutal violence and dehumanizing practices This comparative project investigates Iceland's colonial liminality and draws connections to the colonial ambiguity of the US South depicted as colonized by the federal government during Reconstruction and the site of the colonization of the Black population through slavery and its later iterations

Exploring the work of US southern writers like William Faulkner Gayl Jones Jean Toomer and Carson McCullers alongside twentieth century Icelandic novelists including Halldór Laxness Svava Jakobsdóttir Guðbergur Bergsson and Frjáslaug Sigurðardóttir on both thematic and aesthetic levels reveals much about each region's history and the complexity of colonial dynamics Intersecting Worlds centers layers of Whiteness in both national and transnational contexts challenges ideas of Nordic and US southern exceptionalism and exposes the complex impacts of colonialism in the Global North and the Global South as depicted in twentieth century literature

Girls, Power and International Development Rosie Walters, 2025-05-28 Drawing on interviews with Girl Up members globally this book challenges criticisms of the campaign by demonstrating how girls have reflected critically on the Girl Up discourse rejected its individualistic vision of girls empowerment and interacted with their Northern Southern counterparts in a spirit of mutual learning and respect

Merchant Vessels of the United States, 1989 Merchant Vessels of the United States ... (including Yachts), 1979 Merchant Vessels of the United States... United States. Coast Guard, 1979 The emergence of American English as a discursive variety Ingrid

Paulsen, 2022 Do speakers' identity constructions influence the emergence of new varieties of a language This question is at the heart of a debate about how the process of the emergence of postcolonial varieties of English can best be modeled This volume contributes to the debate by linking it to models and theories proposed by anthropological linguists sociolinguists and discourse linguists who view identity as a social and cultural phenomenon that is produced through linguistic and other social practices Language is seen as essential for identity constructions because speakers use linguistic forms that index social personae as well as specific social practices and values to convey an image of self to other speakers Based on the theory of enregisterment that models the cultural and discursive process of the creation of indexical links between linguistic forms and social values the argument is made that any model of the emergence of new varieties needs to differentiate carefully between a structural level and a discursive level What emerges on the discursive level as a result of processes of enregisterment is a discursive variety The volume illustrates how the emergence of a discursive variety can be systematically studied in a historical context by focusing on the enregisterment of American English as it can be observed in nineteenth century US newspapers Using a discourse linguistic methodological framework and two large databases containing close to 78 million newspaper articles the study reveals a complex pattern of indexical links between the phonological forms h dropping and insertion yod dropping a lengthened and backened bath vowel non-rhoticity a realization of prevocalic r as a labiodental

approximant as well as the lexical items baggage and pants on the one hand and social values centering around nationality authenticity and non specificity on the other hand Qualitative analyses uncover the social personae associated with the linguistic forms e g the American cowboy the African American mammy and the Anglo maniac American dude while quantitative analyses trace the development over time and show that the enregisterment processes were widespread and not restricted to a particular region

Female Stars of British Cinema Williams Melanie Williams, 2017-07-07 Film stars are often seen as a Hollywood creation but this book explores how British cinema developed its own culture of stardom and how its female stars have been prized by audiences worldwide Female Stars of British Cinema uses case studies of seven female stars whose careers span the 1940s to the present day Jean Kent Diana Dors Rita Tushingham Glenda Jackson Helena Bonham Carter Emily Lloyd and Judi Dench to explore how British star femininities have developed over time and how the image of the British female star has responded to broader social and cultural changes These women in question offer a way into the complexities of British cinema s culture of stardom which has sometimes espoused glamour and sometimes rejected it and is entangled with issues of regional national and ethnic identity as well as class sexuality and age Exploring and investigating the variety of British star femininities over the last seventy five years this book also interrogates the omissions and absences from that same cinematic firmament
