emerge after the formal hostilities end demonstrate that war and peace impact and are impacted by women and men differently By drawing on a strong theoretical framework and a number of cases this volume provides important insight into questions pertaining to the end of conflict and the challenges inherent in the post conflict transition period that are relevant to students and practitioners alike

A Farewell to Arms? Michael Cox, Adrian Guelke, Fiona Stephen, 2006-04-18 This comprehensive and original study is the first to explain in detail how the Good Friday Agreement ran into trouble why we are still some way from a final settlement but why a return to war is most unlikely even in an age where global terror now threatens world order more seriously than at any time in the past This new edition of an established authoritative text will be essential reading for students researchers and academics of Irish politics conflict and peace studies and international relations

Contesting Peace in the Postwar City Ivan Gusic, 2019-12-03 Contesting Peace in the Postwar City is key reading for urban and peace and conflict scholars In this impressive and meticulously researched book Gusic reflects on the ways in which divisions are routinised in the everyday landscape of divided cities and skilfully investigates how change and continuity are governed in postwar urban spaces The book provides rich empirical material from the cities of Mostar Mitrovica and Belfast drawing on nuanced fieldwork insights Stefanie Kappler Durham University UK Ivan Gusic sets out a powerful theoretically critical and empirically rich account of the trajectories of cities after war The strength of the work is that it brings an understanding of the urban condition into relation with ethno national conflict and the survival of violence Gusic unsettles dominant narratives in peace studies by offering a grounded evaluation of three cities coming out of violence and points to the importance of place in peacebuilding processes Brendan Murtagh Queen s University Belfast UK Detailed case studies of Belfast Mitrovica and Mostar show how cities are often engines of what Ivan Gusic calls war in peace This on trend study combines the latest research from critical urban studies with peace and conflict studies to produce a very accessible and internationally relevant book It is highly recommended Roger Mac Ginty Durham University UK This book explores why the postwar city reinforces rather than transcends its continuities of war in peace It theorises war to peace transitions as conflicts over how to socio politically order society and then analyses different urban conflicts over peace s in postwar Belfast Northern Ireland Mitrovica Kosovo and Mostar Bosnia Herzegovina Focusing on themes such as educational segregation clientelism fear paramilitaries and infrastructure it shows how conflict lines from war are perpetuated in and by the postwar city Yet it also discovers instances where antagonisms are bridged by utilising the postwar city s transcending potential While written in the nexus between peace research and urban studies this book also speaks to political geography international relations anthropology and planning

Building Sustainable Peace Armin Langer, Arnim Langer, Graham K. Brown, 2016 Countries emerging from civil war or protracted violence often face the daunting challenge of rebuilding their economy while simultaneously creating the political and social conditions for a stable peace The implicit assumption in the international community that rapid political democratisation along with economic liberalisation holds the key to sustainable peace is belied by the experiences of countries such as Iraq and Afghanistan. Often the challenges of post conflict reconstruction revolve around the timing and sequencing of different reforms that may have contradictory implications. Drawing on a range of thematic studies and empirical cases this book examines how post conflict reconstruction policies can be better sequenced in order to promote sustainable peace. The book provides evidence that many reforms that are often thought to be imperative in post conflict societies may be better considered as long term objectives and that the immediate imperative for such societies should be people centred policies. Recognition Theory as Social Research Shane

O'Neill, Nicholas H. Smith, 2012-07-30 Presents the case for an exciting new research program in the social sciences based on the theory of recognition developed by Axel Honneth and others in recent years. The theory provides a frame for revealing new insights about conflicts and the potential of recognition theory to guide just resolutions of these conflicts is also explored.

Ethnic Politics and Democratic Transition in Rwanda David E. Kiwuka, 2012 This book offers an examination of how a deeply divided post conflict society embarks on democratic transition. Using Rwanda as the case study it combines analysis of democratic transition and ethnopolitical debate asking why deeply divided ethnic societies have a tendency to fail. Though marginalised in existing literature on democratic transition this path breaking book shows how ethnicity has a significant impact on the direction and success of democratic process. The initial failure of democratic transition in Rwanda shows that the current regime will need to be sensitive to ethnicity, ethnopolitical consciousness and mobility in order to be successful in its second transition attempt. Based on key informant interviews, participant observation and primary resources this book develops beyond the case study of Rwanda to posit a new framework that integrates variables of unity, equality, trust and institutional engineering in an integrative model to study and evaluate democratic transition in divided or post conflict society. Ethnic Politics and Democratic Transition in Rwanda will be of interest to students and scholars of democratization, democracy and ethnic politics and conflict. Asymmetric Autonomy and the Settlement of Ethnic Conflicts Marc Weller, Katherine Nobbs, 2011-10-11 Throughout the world many sovereign states grant one or more of their territories greater autonomy than other areas. This arrangement known as asymmetric autonomy has been adopted with greater regularity as a solution to ethnic strife and secessionist struggles in recent decades. As asymmetric autonomy becomes one of the most frequently used conflict resolution methods examination of the positive and negative consequences of its implementation as well as its efficacy is vital. Asymmetric Autonomy and the Settlement of Ethnic Conflicts assesses the ability of such power distribution arrangements to resolve violent struggles between central governments and separatist groups. This collection of new case studies from around the world covers a host of important developments from recentralization in Russia to one country two systems in China to constitutional innovation in Iraq. As a whole these essays examine how well asymmetric autonomy agreements can bring protracted and bloody conflicts to an end, satisfy the demands of both sides, guarantee the physical integrity of a state and ensure peace and stability. Contributors to this book also analyze the many problems and dilemmas that can arise when autonomous regions are formed For example powers may be loosely defined or unrealistically assigned to the state within a state Redrawn boundaries can create new minorities and make other groups vulnerable to human rights violations Given the number of limited self determination systems in place the essays in this volume present varied evaluations of these political structures Asymmetric state agreements have the potential to remedy some of humanity s most intractable disputes In Asymmetric Autonomy and the Settlement of Ethnic Conflicts leading political scientists and diplomatic experts shed new light on the practical consequences of these settlements and offer sophisticated frameworks for understanding this path toward lasting peace

The European Union's Approach to Conflict Resolution Laurence Cooley, 2018-10-09 This book investigates and explains the European Union s approach to conflict resolution in three countries of the Western Balkans Bosnia and Herzegovina Macedonia and Kosovo In doing so it critically interrogates claims that the EU acts as an agent of conflict transformation in its engagement with conflict affected states The book argues contrary to the assumptions of much of the existing literature that rather than seeking the transformation of conflicts the EU pursues a more conservative strategy based on the regulation of conflict through the promotion of institutional mechanisms such as consociational power sharing and decentralisation Drawing on discourse analysis of documents speeches and interviews conducted by the author with European Union officials and policy makers in Brussels and the case study countries the book offers a theoretically grounded methodologically rigorous and empirically detailed analysis of EU policy preferences of the ideas that underpin them and of how those preferences are legitimised This book will be of key interest to scholars students and practitioners interested in ethnic conflict and conflict resolution the politics of the Balkans and the external and foreign policies of the EU
