Palliative Care For Non Cancer Patients:

Palliative Care for Non-cancer Patients Julia M. Addington-Hall,Irene Higginson,2001 The specialty of palliative care has traditionally grown out of oncology and there has been little research into the needs of patients dying from causes other than cancer Few non cancer patients receive hospice in patient home care or day care although a good proportion of hospices say that their services are available to non cancer patients As a result the importance of palliative care for non cancer patients is now being increasingly recognized internationally and in the UK a committee reporting to the Department of Health recommended that palliative care should be accessible to all patients who need such care Palliative Care for Non Cancer Patients considers the needs and experiences of patients dying from for example stroke heart disease or dementia by drawing on a range of disciplines and specialties in medicine The provision of palliative care for patients dying from causes other than cancer raises a number of important questions for policy makers and purchasers This book summarizes what is known about the needs of and appropriate service provision for people dying of causes other than cancer and begins to set a research agenda

Palliative Pharmacy Care Jennifer M Strickland,2009-01-22 Palliative care is primarily directed at providing relief to a terminally ill person through symptom and pain management The goal is not to cure but to provide comfort and maintain the highest possible quality of life for as long as life remains The focus is not on death but on compassionate specialized care for the living Palliative care functions best within an interdisciplinary team model that includes pharmacists playing a vital role in improving therapy compliance and outcomes Pharmacists are practicing palliative care in a number of settings that include hospice home care out patient treatment centers and hospitals Palliative care often follows as a parallel track to the therapy for the disease Palliative Pharmacy Care serves both as an aid to practitioners and a teaching text Each chapter contains at least one case study with questions key points and clinical pearls Inside you ll find A solid foundation for the history and principles of the area of practice as well as more advanced sections on specific treatment issues such as cancer and pediatrics Symptom management overviews for specific diseases and general health problems related to terminal illness such as anxiety fatigue and constipation Pain management guidelines on topics such pathophysiology and pharmacology nociceptive pain neuropathic pain equianalgesic dosing opioid rotation secretion management and death rattle A discussion on the future of pharmacists in palliative care setting up palliative care services and other general issues and concerns for pharmacists providing this service And much more

PALLIATIVE CARE IN NON-CANCER PATIENTS. AIDS, CRITICALLY ILL & NEUROLOGICAL DISEASES David Oliver,Michael Hartwick,Lisa Fischer,Liz Gwyther,Manuel Luís Capelas (ed.),2019-03-01 This is the first of two volumes dedicated to palliative care for patients with non cancer diseases to help health professionals students and society in general to find strategies to provide better care to these patients Were invited professionals and researchers of recognized international merit who have collaborated with the Universidade Cat lica Portuguesa in the training in palliative care of our students In this first volume

we will address the interventions among patients with progressive neurological disease AIDS and the critical patient emergency and intensive care In the second issue we will cover palliative care in patients with chronic heart respiratory and renal disease Manuel Lu s Capelas PhD Assistant Professor at the Institute of Health Sciences of UCP and Codirector of the Portuguese Observatory for Palliative Care This work is a relevant and timely contribution in strengthening knowledge about Palliative Care in groups of patients traditionally excluded from our services such as those with non cancer and degenerative diseases but including those who use services as diverse as intensive care and emergency services It is important on this occasion to leave a word of deep thanks and appreciation to the experts involved in the preparation of this book Duarte Soares President of the Portuguese Association for Palliative Care Palliative Care for Chronic Cancer Patients in the Community Michael Silberman, 2020-10-29 The new global cancer data suggests that the global burden has risen to 18.1 million new cases per year and 9.6 million cancer deaths per year A number of factors appear to be driving this increase in particular a growing and aging global population and an increase of exposure to cancer risk factors linked to social and economic development For rapidly growing economies the data suggests a shift from poverty or infection related cancers to those associated with lifestyles more typical in industrialized countries There is still large geographical diversity in cancer occurrence and variations in the magnitude and profile of the disease between and within world regions There are specific types of cancer that dominate globally lung female breast and colorectal cancer and the regional variations in common cancer types signal the extent to which societal economic and lifestyle changes interplay to differentially impact on the profile of this most complex group of diseases Unfortunately despite advances in cancer care a significant proportion of patients at home experience sub optimal outcomes Barriers to successful treatment outcomes include but are not limited to access to oncologists in the primary health centers non adherence lack of experienced oncology and palliative care nurses in the community inadequate monitoring and the lack of training of family and pediatric physicians Telemedicine approaches including telephone triage education telemonitoring teleconsultation and status tracking through mobile applications have shown promise in further improving outcomes in particular for chronic cancer patients following their hospitalization Lessons can be learned from existing hospices in North America the United Kingdom Australia Centers of Excellence in African Uganda and modern community services in India Kerala An important goal of this book is to describe and encourage professionals to develop new community programs in palliative care which include training and empowering physicians and nurses in the community on the principles of palliative care The Middle East Cancer Consortium MECC together with the American Society of Clinical Oncology ASCO and the American Oncology Nursing Society ONS have conducted multiple courses ranging from basic palliative care to more specialized training in palliative care for multiple nationalities in Europe Asia and Africa Our experience clearly indicates that to promote such activities one needs strong leadership and confirmed political will to support the endeavor The new book will emphasize the importance of having a core of multiple stakeholders including community leaders government NGOs and media to be actively involved in advocating for the cause and generating public awareness This text will provide the reader with a comprehensive understanding of the outside of the hospital treatment of cancer patients by medical paramedical and volunteer personnel In doing so this text will encourage the creation of new palliative care services improving upon the existing ones and stimulate further research in this field Part 1 of the text will begin with an overview of the current state of affairs of services provided to cancer patients while being cared for by primary health centers It will also review the current literature regarding medical and psychological based therapy options in the community for cancer patients at different stages of their disease Part 2 will address the unique role of the community nurse within the framework of the multidisciplinary team treating the patient in the attempt to provide optimal evaluation and care in very challenging situations such as with terminal patients Part 3 will provide insightful models of this new discipline and serve as a valuable resource for physicians nurses social workers and others involved in the care of cancer patients The book will take a multidisciplinary approach integrating clinical and environmental data for practical management to enhance the efficacy of treatment while relieving suffering Part 4 will also discuss the application of modern technological approaches to track symptoms quality of life diet mobility duration of sleep and medication use including pain killers in chronic cancer patients in the community Part 5 of the book will also be devoted to modes of developing a collaborative program between governmental and non governmental organization sectors This includes volunteer workers in close collaboration with medical professionals for providing emotional and spiritual support nursing care nutritional support and empowering family caregivers Such a model makes palliative care in the community a people s movement thus transferring part of the responsibility and ownership to the community

Management of Advanced Disease, Fourth edition

Palliative Care for Non-cancer Patients - Case Reports of Systemic Lupus Erythematosus Kenji Yamamoto,2017 Objective The Global Atlas of Palliative Care at the End of Life published by the World Health Organization and Worldwide Palliative Care Alliance in 2014 reported that worldwide one third of patients who required palliative care had terminal cancer while two thirds had a non cancer disease Although patients with systemic lupus erythematosus SLE have been cases of fatal complications there are no reports of palliative care for SLE We investigated clinical characteristics of palliative care patients with non cancer disease and presented two cases of SLE Methods Eight hundred and fifty one patients who requested palliative care during the 5 year investigation period from January 1 2013 to December 31 2017 at our hospital data from 26 patients with non cancer diseases who were diagnosed with diseases such as causative diseases and psychiatric disorders were retrospectively analyzed Results The physical disorders of the 26 patients mean age 65 2 years 14 men and 12 women were amyotrophic lateral sclerosis dilated cardiomyopathy chronic heart failure SLE etc The two patients were SLE one had coexistent pulmonary alveolar hemorrhage and presented with dyspnea and psychological anxiety and the other had coexistent skin ulcers and presented with pain insomnia and psychological anxiety Discussion There were still few requests for palliative care in non cancer patients in Japan The results of the present study showed that it may be necessary to provide palliative care as early as possible to SLE patients with serious complications and other non cancer disease

Palliative Care in Non-Cancer Patients: Heart Failure, End-Stage Renal Disease & Chronic Lung Diseases Leah Steinberg, Nadim Walji, Jane Ridley, Valerie Schulz, Tara Lohmann, 2019-11-01 According the Worldwide Palliative Care Alliance Stephen Connor and Xavier Gomez Batiste the heart failure the chronic lung disease namely the chronic obstructive pulmonary disease and the end stage renal disease are respectively the first third and sixth disease which the people with palliative care need are more prevalent This second of two books dedicated to palliative care for non cancer patients aims to help health professionals students and society in general to find strategies to provide the best possible care to patients and their families Namely in this book we approach the intervention to improve the quality of life of the patients who live with chronic heart lung or kidney disease The authors are professionals and researchers of recognized international merit who have collaborated with the Universidade Catolica Portuguesa in the training in palliative care of its students Manuel Luis Capelas PhD Assistant Professor at the Institute of Health Sciences of UCP and Codirector of the Portuguese Observatory for Palliative Care Palliative This work is a relevant and timely contribution in strengthening knowledge about Palliative Care in groups of patients traditionally excluded from our services such as those with organ failure It is important on this occasion to leave a word of deep thanks and appreciation to the experts involved in the preparation of this book Duarte Soares President of the Portuguese Association for Palliative Care

Palliative Care in Patients with Noncancer Illness Kieran Lewis Quinn, 2021 The evidence base for palliative care is heavily skewed toward patients with cancer despite the fact that there are twice as many patients with palliative care needs and noncancer illness This thesis seeks to establish the evidence for clinical practice and policy development for palliative care programs to improve end of life care The first study was a systematic review and meta analysis of randomized clinical trials of patients with primarily noncancer illness We found that receipt of palliative care compared with usual care was significantly associated with less acute healthcare use and modestly lower symptom burden and no significant difference in quality of life The second study measured the association between newly initiated palliative care in the last 6 months of life healthcare use and location of death in a cohort of adults dying from noncancer illness and compared these associations with those who die from cancer We found that among those dying of chronic organ failure palliative care was associated with a reduction in the rate of emergency department use hospitalizations and ICU admissions Palliative care was associated with increased rates of emergency department use and hospitalization in patients dying of dementia which differed depending upon whether they lived in the community or in a nursing home In our third study we measured the association between physician rates of referral to palliative care and location of death in hospitalized adults with serious illness which include patients dying of cancer and noncancer illness We found that patients who were cared for by physicians with higher rates of referral to palliative care were less likely to die in hospital and more likely to die at home Standardizing referral to palliative care may help reduce physician level variation in referral as a barrier to access Collectively these thesis findings highlight the potential benefits of palliative care in patients with select noncancer illness and identify further knowledge gaps for other common noncancer illnesses Scaling existing palliative care to increase access through sustained investment in physician training and current models of collaborative palliative care may improve end of life care which have significant implications for health policy

Treatment of End-stage Non-cancer Diagnoses Shirley Ann Smith,2001 Hospice and Palliative Care Walter B. Forman,2003 Hospice and Palliative Care Concepts and Practice Second Edition offers theoretical perspectives and practical information about this growing field Contributing authors from a variety of backgrounds working in end of life care present a historical overview of hospice and explain how the interdisciplinary team functions in the hospice setting They then discuss challenges to the team including symptom management death education ethical issues and support groups The future of hospice is addressed in the final part of the book The contributors are experts in community medical care geriatric care nursing care pain management research counseling and hospice management OECD Health Policy Studies Time for Better Care at the End of Life OECD,2023-02-07 With more chronic conditions and an ageing population a growing share of the population will need end of life care reaching close to 10 million people by 2050 While end of life care services help improve quality of life through relieving pain and other symptoms currently there are substantial gaps in the provision of services

End of Life Choices for Cancer Patients Ruth E Board,Michael I Bennett,Penney Lewis,John Wagstaff,Peter Selby,2020-04-10 Legal change on the provision of assisted dying by healthcare professionals has occurred in a substantial number of jurisdictions This work brings together contributions on end of life choices from experienced professionals from oncology disciplines palliative care law nursing and professions allied to medicine The goals are To better inform cancer care professionals and the wider community about developments in choices in end of life care for cancer patients internationally To better answer questions from patients and respond to their requests including questions about and requests for assisted dying in countries where it is legal To have a balanced and well informed dialogue about choices available to patients without developing a formal policy position on change in law To provide a basis of information for future educational activities A Public Health Perspective on End of Life Care Joachim Cohen,Luc Deliens,2012-01-19 Worldwide more than 50 million people die each year and it is estimated on the basis of the conditions leading to death that up to 60% of them could benefit from some form of palliative care It is a public health challenge to ensure that these people can access good palliative or end of life care Pursuing good population health essentially also implies striving for a good enough death and a good quality of care at the end of life Safeguarding a good quality of the end of life for patient populations for whom it is appropriate requires a public health approach In most developed countries ageing populations that increasingly die from chronic diseases after a prolonged often degenerative dying trajectory make up the public health challenges for palliative care The very large baby boom generation will soon reach old age and can be expected to pose strong demands regarding the circumstances and care at their end of life Only by applying a public health approach to palliative care instead of individual patient perspectives can societies successfully help to organize and plan end of life care in accordance with these aspirations A Public Health Perspective on End of Life Care presents a synthesis and overview of relevant research and empirical data on the end of life that can bear a basis for a more systematic public health of the end of life The book focuses on population health rather than clinical interventions or other aspects of individual health and discusses studies using different methodologies not only epidemiological research The focus is on the quality of the end of life of populations in particular from social sciences environmental sciences and humanities perspectives

Aging in Hong Kong Jean Woo, 2012-09-06 With the longest life expectancy for men and the second longest for women Hong Kong typifies our planet s aging population The daily lives of its older adults closely match the advantages and disadvantages experienced by urban elders in other developed countries For these reasons Hong Kong s elderly serve as a salient guide to older people s social psychological and healthcare needs concerns of increasing importance as the world grows older Aging in Hong Kong examines this emblematic population as a case study specifically in comparison with their counterparts in the West shedding light on diverse interrelated currents in the aging experience Referencing numerous international studies the book contrasts different health service arrangements and social factors and relates them to a variety of health outcomes Its wide ranging coverage documents health and illness trends reviews age friendly policy initiatives relates health literacy to patients active role in their own care and discusses elders as an underserved group in the division of limited health funding and resources This multiple focus draws readers attention to policies that need revisiting or retooling as chapters analyze major life areas including Living environment Retirement and post retirement employment issues Financial asset management Health literacy regarding aging issues Elder positive service delivery models Ageism in the prioritization of healthcare End of life issues By assembling such a wealth of data on its subject Aging in Hong Kong puts ongoing challenges into clear focus for gerontologists sociologists health and cross cultural psychologists public health policymakers and others involved in improving the quality of elders lives

The Dying Soul Mark Cobb,2001-01-16 Holistic models of cancer and palliative care frequently refer to spirituality as an important element But what do we mean when we talk about spirituality and how do we provide spiritual care This book sets out an understanding of this complex domain describing how spirituality is experienced and expressed and looks at the impact of terminal illness The author argues that if we are to recognize spirituality as a significant aspect of living and dying then care providers must develop an interesting consistent and effective approach Therefore issues of training policy and practice all need to be addressed Spirituality is often represented as the fourth pillar of palliative care and yet it is often the least developed area in terms of both theory and practice Originating from the author s clinical and teaching experience this book aims to explore the concepts issues and practical implications of spirituality in care

Handbook of Social Justice in Loss and Grief Darcy L. Harris,Tashel C. Bordere,2016-02-05 The Handbook of Social Justice in Loss and Grief is a scholarly work of social criticism richly grounded in personal experience evocative case studies and current multicultural and sociocultural theories and research It is also consistently practical and reflective challenging readers to think through responses to ethically complex scenarios in which social justice is undermined by radically uneven opportunity structures hierarchies of voice and privilege personal and professional power and unconscious assumptions at the very junctures when people are most vulnerable at points of serious illness confrontation with end of life decision making and in the throes of grief and bereavement Harris and Bordere give the reader an active and engaged take on the field enticing readers to interrogate their own assumptions and practices while increasing chapter after chapter their cultural literacy regarding important groups and contexts The Handbook of Social Justice in Loss and Grief deeply and uniquely addresses a hot topic in the helping professions and social sciences and does so with uncommon readability
