OverviewPlansUsage In

Osirium PAM, previously marketed as Osiris, is a hybrid-cloud world. It sits at the heart of Privileged Access Management (PAM).

It's a built-for-purpose Privileged Protection & Task Automation solution for today's complex infrastructure and critical assets, ensuring every action is accountable, visible and auditable. Core

- Identifying privileged accounts and bringing them under control within a secure, scalable credential vault; once under control, Osirium PAM provides all the tools necessary to manage the lifecycle of those credentials ensuring compliance with corporate policy.
- Mapping users to the systems they use and defining the level of access to be granted.
- With users having identified themselves to Osirium PAM (using corporate standard MFA tools), presenting the list of devices or systems they can access and providing simple access and login to the device without the user ever knowing the actual connection credentials.
- Separating users from privileged credentials, giving the organisation a single point of control, visibility and audit capabilities to manage access and investigate potential violation.

Advanced capabilities include:

Privileged Session Management (PSM): record all screen and keyboard interactions during privileged sessions to provide an ideal audit log. The recordings can be used in an audit trail, for training purposes or forensic investigation following a suspected breach.

Privileged Task Management (PTM): wrap frequently performed tasks to expose just the functionality needed to perform the task, not the entire application. For example, a less experienced help desk agent may have a simple task to reset a locked account without needing full access to the Active Directory Console.
