The Econometrics of Panel Data László Mátyás, Patrick Sevestre, 2013-12-01 The aim of this volume is to provide a general overview of the econometrics of panel data both from a theoretical and from an applied viewpoint Since the pioneering papers by Kuh 1959 Mundlak 1961 Hoch 1962 and Balestra and Nerlove 1966 the pooling of cross section and time series data has become an increasingly popular way of quantifying economic relationships Each series provides information lacking in the other so a combination of both leads to more accurate and reliable results than would be achievable by one type of series alone Over the last 30 years much work has been done investigation of the properties of the applied estimators and test statistics analysis of dynamic models and the effects of eventual measurement errors etc These are just some of the problems addressed by this work In addition some specific difficulties associated with the use of panel data such as attrition heterogeneity selectivity bias pseudo panels etc have also been explored The first objective of this book which takes up Parts I and II is to give as complete and up to date a presentation of these theoretical developments as possible Part I is concerned with classical linear models and their extensions Part II deals with nonlinear models and related issues logit and probit models latent variable models incomplete panels and selectivity bias and point processes

Unemployment Dynamics in the United States and West Germany Markus Gangl, 2012-12-06 In writing this book I increasingly became aware of the extent to which much of the finest social science research has been devoted to the issue of unemployment Unemployment rightly is a key issue in the social sciences for search of social and political answers to the economic social and psychological distress caused by uncertainty and macroeconomic change I was glad to find my own worries shared by eminent and respected scholars George Akerlof once confessed to pursue the study of unemployment ultimately because of his father's distress from fear of unemployment and Wout Ultee started research on unemployment from the consideration that parents talk about unemployment risks should not come to dominate marriage parties or other family occasions The problem of unemployment is thus hardly confined to actual loss of income but one where economic insecurity begins to undermine the very fabric of society In consequence to combat unemployment should indeed be a foremost issue in societies striving for freedom and justice for their citizenry yet to succeed obviously requires an understanding of the underlying economic realities If this study could contribute to this endeavor all the time spent in writing would seem well spent indeed Against the significant body of existing social science research on unemployment it seems appropriate to be clear about the scope and limitations of the current study however
