Praise for Paper Faces: Babyboomer Memoir

"Greer's poetry brings a unique dimension to the experience of autobiography, with delicate and vivid shape and language that the reader's ability to see through her eyes. She has chosen the most right details to make places and times come to life. Her restraint in writing and composition. It is amazing."
—Steven L. Davis, Ph.D., Director, University of Oregon
Women's Center

"I love the poems. The author has a gift for the story in the telling. I like Greer's view of the baby boom, traveled a long way, sometimes, sometimes hilarious, and often reaching into the past to find it here. She tells us about it in a series of poems that tell us with a grace of reminiscence and a thorough education for those in time and place."
—Annette Chace, M.A., author of Pomegranate Seed and other novels, Director, Rollins University's Graduate Program in Children's Literature.

The Author

Elizabeth (Ibby) Greer lives near the Blue Ridge Mountains with her husband and cat. After "WWII" she resigned from most of her civic boards and opened a day, independent, full-service bookstore on their property where had been General John Early's pre-Civil War Law Office. Her first one-woman show of her oils at a local college is in 2011.
