Paper Rings:

Algebras, Rings and Modules Michiel Hazewinkel, Nadiya Gubareni, V.V. Kirichenko, 2006-01-18 Associative rings and algebras are very interesting algebraic structures. In a strict sense the theory of algebras in particular noncommutative algebras originated from a single example namely the quaternions created by Sir William R. Hamilton in 1843. This was the first example of a noncommutative numbers system. During the next forty years mathematicians introduced other examples of noncommutative algebras began to bring some order into them and to single out certain types of algebras for special attention. Thus low dimensional algebras division algebras and commutative algebras were classified and characterized. The first complete results in the structure theory of associative algebras over the real and complex fields were obtained by T. Molien, E. Cartan and G. Frobenius. Modern ring theory began when J. H. Wedderburn proved his celebrated classification theorem for finite dimensional semisimple algebras over arbitrary fields. Twenty years later E. Artin proved a structure theorem for rings satisfying both the ascending and descending chain condition which generalized Wedderburn's structure theorem. The Wedderburn-Artin theorem has since become a cornerstone of noncommutative ring theory. The purpose of this book is to introduce the subject of the structure theory of associative rings. This book is addressed to a reader who wishes to learn this topic from the beginning to research level. We have tried to write a self-contained book which is intended to be a modern textbook on the structure theory of associative rings and related structures and will be accessible for independent study.

Rings, Modules and Representations Viet Dung Nguyen, 2009 The papers in this volume contain results in active research areas in the theory of rings and modules including noncommutative and commutative ring theory, module theory, representation theory and coding theory.
