Chemistry of Modern Papermaking Cornel Hagiopol, James W. Johnston, 2011-09-08 Chemistry of Modern Papermaking presents a chemist's perspective on the papermaking process. With roughly 3% of the mass of a paper product invested in water-soluble chemicals, paper makers can adjust the speed and efficiency of the process, minimize and reuse surplus materials, and differentiate a paper product as required by specific customers. Chemical Abstracts Service Source Index American Chemical Society. Chemical Abstracts Service, 1907 A key source to journal and conference abbreviations in the sciences. Although it focuses on chemistry, other scientific and engineering disciplines are also well represented. In addition to the abbreviation and full title, each entry also contains publishing info, title changes, language, and frequency of publication, and libraries owning that title. Over 130,000 entries representing more than 70,000 publications dating back to 1907 are included. TAPPI Papermakers Conference; Proceedings Technical Association of the Pulp and Paper Industry (U.S.), 1974 Paper Chemistry J.C. Roberts, 1995-12-31 Although the title of this book is Paper Chemistry, it should be considered as a text about the chemistry of the formation of paper from aqueous suspensions of fibre and other additives rather than as a book about the chemistry of the raw material itself. It is the subject of what papermakers call wet end chemistry. There are many other excellent texts on the chemistry of cellulose, and apart from one chapter on the accessibility of cellulose, the subject is not addressed here. Neither does the book deal with the chemistry of pulp preparation from wood or from other plant sources or from recycled fibres, for there are also many excellent texts on this subject. The first edition of this book was a great success and soon became established as one of the Bibles of the industry. Its achievement then was to collect the considerable advances in understanding which had been made in the chemistry of papermaking in previous years and provide for the first time a sound physico-chemical basis of the subject. This new edition has been thoroughly updated with much new material added. The formation of paper is a continuous filtration process in which cellulosic fibres are formed into a network which is then pressed and dried. The important chemistry involved in this process is firstly the retention of colloidal material during filtration and secondly the modification of fibre and sheet properties so as to widen the scope for the use of paper and board products. Papers and Addresses Presented at
