

SUMMARY ON CHAPTER 2 – METHODS OF LINGUISTIC ANTHROPOLOGYCONTRASTING LINGUISTIC WITH LINGUISTIC ANTHROPOLOGY

LINGUISTIC is the scientific study of language and its focus is the systematic investigation of the properties of languages as well as the characteristics of language in general. It encompasses the history of language families and how languages are acquired by the children and adults and how language is processed in the mind and how it is connected to gender and race. On the other hand, LINGUISTIC ANTHROPOLOGY studies the language in its biological and sociocultural context. The term society is mostly used almost interchangeably with the term culture and the compound sociocultural points out their interconnection. Linguistic Anthropologist are experts that studies linguistic anthropology. They study and describe the communicative links between individual members of a group and between groups within society and when they study and describe traditional behavior (culture) and how it relates to the values of the members of a group, their linkages with language are sociocultural.

THE FIELDWORK COMPONENT

Fieldwork is the exposure of anthropologists to society or community they study and is usually lasting several months and frequently a full year. It is when anthropologist engages in the field they are working or doing their observation and studies by emerging into the field. Participation observation is the immersion of anthropological fieldworkers for an extended day to day activity of the whom they study.

Handbook of American Indian Languages is Boas first volume of fieldwork where he insisted that a command of language is an indispensable means of obtaining accurate and through knowledge because much information can be gained by listening to conversations of the natives and by taking part of their daily life which to the observer who has no command of the language will remain entirely inaccessible. Bronislaw Malinowski is a British anthropologist who introduced the technique of the participant observation. Kennet L. Hale is an American linguist who studied a huge variety of previously unstudied and often endangered languages especially indigenous language of North America and Australia. Mary R. Haas is also an American linguist who specialized in North American Indian Languages. Thai and historical linguistic and she was a student of Edward Sapir and Franz Boas.

Anthropology and Linguistics , 1993 Expanding American Anthropology, 1945-1980 Alice Beck Kehoe, Paul L.

Doughty, 2012-01-06 This book examines American anthropology's participation in the expansion of the social sciences after World War II Anthropology itself expanded into diverse subfields at this time on the initiative of individuals The Association of Senior Anthropologists of the American Anthropological Association AAA asks some of these individuals to give accounts of their personal innovations in this discipline which provides primary source material on the history of American anthropology

Anthropological Linguistics, 2005 Approaches to Language, Culture, and Cognition M. Yamaguchi, D. Tay, B. Blount, 2014-08-28 Approaches to Language Culture and Cognition aims to bring cognitive linguistics and linguistic anthropology closer together calling for further investigations of language and culture from cognitively informed perspectives against the backdrop of the current trend of linguistic anthropology Lexical Acculturation in Native American Languages Cecil H. Brown, 1999 Lexical acculturation refers to the accommodation of languages to new objects and concepts encountered as the result of culture contact This unique study analyzes a survey of words for 77 items of European culture e.g. chicken horse apple rice scissors soap and Saturday in the vocabularies of 292 Amerindian languages and dialects spoken from the Arctic Circle to Tierra del Fuego The first book ever to undertake such a large and systematic cross language investigation Brown's work provides fresh insights into general processes of lexical change and development including those involving language universals and diffusion Ethnography, Linguistics, Narrative Inequality Dell Hymes, 2003-09-02 This collection of work addresses the contribution that ethnography and linguistics make to education and the contribution that research in education makes to anthropology and linguistics The first section of the book pinpoints characteristics of anthropology that most make a difference to research in education The second section describes the perspective that is needed if the study of language is to contribute adequately to problems of education and inequality Finally the third section takes up discoveries about narrative which show that young people's narratives may have a depth of form and skill that has gone largely unrecognized Resources in Education, 1993 Development of Researches in Anthropology in India Lalita Prasad Vidyarthi, Vijay S. Upadhyay, 1981 Contributed articles Encyclopedia of Linguistics Philipp Strazny, 2013-02-01 Utilizing a historical and international approach this valuable two volume resource makes even the more complex linguistic issues understandable for the non specialized reader Containing over 500 alphabetically arranged entries and an expansive glossary by a team of international scholars the Encyclopedia of Linguistics explores the varied perspectives figures and methodologies that make up the field Handbook of Descriptive Linguistic Fieldwork Shobhana L. Chelliah, Willem J. de Reuse, 2010-10-06 The Handbook of Descriptive Linguistic Fieldwork is the most comprehensive reference on linguistic fieldwork on the market bringing together all the reader needs to carry out successful linguistic fieldwork Based on the experiences of two veteran linguistic fieldworkers and advice from more than a twenty active fieldwork researchers this handbook provides an encyclopedic review of current publications on linguistic fieldwork and surveys past and present approaches and solutions to problems in the field and the historical political and social variables correlating with fieldwork in different areas of the world The discussion of the ethical dimensions of fieldwork as well as what constitutes the typical linguistic fieldwork setting or consultant is explored from multiple perspectives relevant to fieldwork on every continent Included is information omitted in most other texts on the subject such as the collection representation management and methods of extracting grammatical information from discourse and conversational data as well as the relationship between questionnaire based elicitation text based elicitation and philology and the need for combinations of these methods The book is useful before during and after linguistic field trips since it provides extensive practical macro and micro organization and planning fieldwork tips as well as a handy sketch of major typological features for use in linguistic analysis Comprehensive references are provided at the end of each chapter as resources relevant to the reader s particular interests American Indian languages and American linguistics Wallace L.
