Rethinking Judicial Power in Papua New Guinea Bal

Kama, 2024-08-19 This book examines the role and nature of the judiciary in Papua New Guinea PNG the first comprehensive study since the country's independence in 1975 It challenges the traditional view of the judiciary as solely a legal entity arguing for its broader social and political functions Critiquing assumptions inherited from British and Australian colonial thinking it discusses how decolonisation has redefined judicial power enabling courts to have a more transformative role Introducing transformative constitutionalism into Australian Pacific legal thinking the book argues that PNG has a transformative constitution defined by its intent for reform extensive Charter of Rights and a liberal judiciary features not found in other Pacific constitutions Given the region's challenges such as corruption political instability and climate change the book advocates for a more proactive role for the judiciary It proposes a re-evaluation of the classical tripartite doctrine of separation of powers advocating for a quadripartite model in PNG where the judiciary has a broader reformative function and the independent constitutional institutions constitute a fourth arm of government This work makes important contributions to understandings of judicial power and constitutional law as well as other fields including comparative constitutional studies legal history and decolonial scholarship

Decolonisation and the Pacific

Tracey Banivanua Mar, 2016-04-26 This book charts the previously untold story of decolonisation in the oceanic world of the Pacific Australia and New Zealand presenting it both as an indigenous and an international phenomenon Tracey Banivanua Mar reveals how the inherent limits of decolonisation were laid bare by the historical peculiarities of colonialism in the region and demonstrates the way imperial powers conceived of decolonisation as a new form of imperialism She shows how Indigenous peoples responded to these limits by developing rich intellectual political and cultural networks transcending colonial and national borders with localised traditions of protest and dialogue connected to the global ferment of the twentieth century The individual stories told here shed new light on the forces that shaped twentieth century global history and reconfigure the history of decolonisation presenting it not as an historic event but as a fragile contingent and ongoing process continuing well into the postcolonial era

Papua New Guinea Don Woolford, 2015-07 First published in 1976 Papua New Guinea was the first book to interpret the key events that led to the nation's independence in 1975 In the book journalist Don Woolford a correspondent for the Australian Associated Press in Papua New Guinea describes the ferment and excitement of the 1960s and 1970s chronicling the former Australian territory's political development from the first general election for a representative House of Assembly in 1964 through independence Key figures in the transition including Michael Somare John Guise Albert Maori Kiki and Josephine Abaijah make an appearance and their contributions are analyzed adroitly Woolford's access to these and other important individuals as well as to literature produced for a moment that is no longer available make this an inimitable and invaluable record of the remarkable years that led to the creation of the nation of Papua New Guinea

Struggle, Reform,

Boom and Bust Stephen Howes, Martin Davies, Rohan Fox, Maholopa Laveil, Manoj K. Pandey, Kelly Samof, Dek Joe Sum, 2025-07-31 Since Papua New Guinea's independence in 1975 economic growth has been slow but volatile with major changes in economic structure and policies as well as in politics and governance This economic history written to commemorate the fiftieth year of independence and the first to be produced in some 15 years divides the half century since independence into four periods the relative stability but also early struggles of the seventies and eighties the crises and reforms of the nineties the boom of the 2000s and the quiet bust of the 2010s Two chapters cover each period's major economic policy institutional and political developments The final three chapters provide an overall assessment of economic performance and policies since independence and link them with its politics and institutions The book combines painstaking documentation with original analysis to reveal both the strengths and weaknesses of the PNG economy and theorises that the country's hyper politics and insecurity have combined to produce and are reinforced by a weak but stable state and low and increasingly resource dependent growth Data driven frank insightful and engaging Struggle Reform Boom and Bust is written by an expert team of economists from the University of Papua New Guinea and The Australian National University under the leadership of Professor Stephen Howes Director of the ANU Development Policy Centre It is an essential resource for anyone interested in the economy of Papua New Guinea as well as an important contribution to the literature on the challenges and institutional determinants of post colonial development

Guarding the Periphery Tristan Moss, 2017-07-05 In Guarding the Periphery The Australian Army in Papua New Guinea 1951-75 Tristan Moss explores the operational social and racial aspects of this unique force during the height of the colonial era in PNG and during the progression to independence

A Trial Separation Donald Denoon, 2012-05-01 When it came in September 1975 Papua New Guinea's independence was marked by both anxiety and elation In the euphoric aftermath decolonisation was declared a triumph and immediate events seemed to justify that confidence By the 1990s however events had taken a turn for the worse and there were doubts about the capacity of the State to function Before independence Papua New Guinea was an Australian Territory Responsibility lay with a minister in Canberra and services were provided by Commonwealth agencies In 1973 Prime Minister Gough Whitlam declared that independence should be achieved within two years While Australians were united in their desire to decolonise many Papua New Guineans were nervous of independence This superlative history presents the full story of the trial separation of Australia and Papua New Guinea concluding that given the intertwined history geography and economies of the two neighbours the decolonisation project of independence is still a work in progress

Large-scale Mines and Local-level Politics Colin Filer, Pierre-Yves Le Meur, 2017-10-20 Despite the difference in their populations and political status New Caledonia and Papua New Guinea have comparable levels of economic dependence on the extraction and export of mineral resources For this reason the costs and benefits of large scale mining projects for indigenous communities has been a major political issue in both jurisdictions and one that has come to be negotiated through multiple channels at different levels of political organisation The resource boom that took place in the early years of the current century has only served to intensify the political contests and conflicts that surround the distribution of social economic and environmental costs and benefits between community members and other stakeholders in the large scale mining industry However the mutual isolation of Anglophone and Francophone scholars has formed a barrier to systematic comparison of the relationship between large scale mines and local level politics in Papua New Guinea and New Caledonia despite their geographical proximity This collection of essays represents an effort to overcome this barrier but is also intended as a major contribution to the growth of academic and political debate about the social impact of the large scale mining industry in Melanesia and beyond
