Anthropologists and the Rediscovery of America, 1886-1965 John S. Gilkeson, 2010-09-20 This book examines the intersection of cultural anthropology and American cultural nationalism from 1886 when Franz Boas left Germany for the United States until 1965 when the National Endowment for the Humanities was established Five chapters trace the development within academic anthropology of the concepts of culture social class national character value and civilization and their dissemination to non anthropologists As Americans came to think of culture anthropologically as a complex whole far broader and more inclusive than Matthew Arnold's the best which has been thought and said so too did they come to see American communities as stratified into social classes distinguished by their subcultures to attribute the making of the American character to socialization rather than birth to locate the distinctiveness of American culture in its unconscious canons of choice and to view American culture and civilization in a global perspective

A World Made Safe for Differences Christopher Shannon, 2001 In A World Made Safe for Differences Christopher Shannon examines how an anthropological definition of culture shaped the central political and social narratives of the Cold War era In the middle decades of the twentieth century American intellectuals understood culture as a whole way of life and a pattern of values in order to account for and accommodate differences between America and other countries and within America itself Shannon locates the ideological origins of current debates about multiculturalism in the pluralist thought of consensus liberalism The emphasis on individualism in contemporary identity politics Shannon suggests must be understood as a legacy of the Cold War liberalism of the 1950s rather than the counter culture radicalism of the 1960s A World Made Safe for Differences is a highly original and controversial book that will be of great interest to students and scholars of twentieth century American history

Jacobs, 1999-01-01 In this interdisciplinary study of gender cross cultural encounters and federal Indian policy Margaret D. Jacobs explores the changing relationship between Anglo American women and Pueblo Indians before and after the turn of the century During the late nineteenth century the Pueblos were often characterized by women reformers as barbaric and needing to be uplifted into civilization By the 1920s however the Pueblos were widely admired by activist Anglo American women who challenged assimilation policies and worked hard to protect the Pueblos traditional way of life Deftly weaving together an analysis of changes in gender roles attitudes toward sexuality public conceptions of Native peoples and federal Indian policy Jacobs argues that the impetus for this transformation in perception rests less with a progressively tolerant view of Native peoples and more with fundamental shifts in the ways Anglo American women saw their own sexuality and social responsibilities The American Radical Mary Jo Buhle, 2013-02-01 The American Radical tells the story of American democracy from the late 18th century to the present through the lives of the women and men who have fought to advance it Histories of Anthropology Annual Regna Darnell, Frederic Gleach, 2007-01-01 Annual series exploring perspectives on the history of anthropology Modern Women, Modern Work Francesca Sawaya, 2013-04-19 Focusing on literary authors social reformers journalists and anthropologists Francesca Sawaya demonstrates how women intellectuals in early twentieth century America combined and criticized ideas from both the Victorian cult of domesticity and the modern culture of professionalism to shape new kinds of writing and new kinds of work for themselves Sawaya challenges our long standing histories of modern professional work by elucidating the multiple ways domestic discourse framed professional culture Modernist views of professionalism typically told a racialized story of a historical break between the primitive feminine and domestic work of the Victorian past and the modern masculine professional expertise of the present Modern Women, Modern Work historicizes this discourse about the primitive labor of women and racial others and demonstrates how it has been adopted uncritically in contemporary accounts of professionalism modernism and modernity Seeking to recuperate black and white women's contestations of the modern professions Sawaya pairs selected novels with a broad range of nonfiction writings to show how differing narratives about the transition to modernity authorized women's professionalism in a variety of fields Among the figures considered are Jane Addams Ruth Benedict Willa Cather Pauline Hopkins Zora Neale Hurston Sarah Orne Jewett Josephine St Pierre Ruffin and Ida Tarbell In mapping out the constraints women faced in their writings and their work and in tracing the slippery compromises they embraced and the brilliant
