Benjamin,2009 Although sport psychology did not fully mature as a recognized discipline until the 1960s pioneering psychologists in the late nineteenth and early twentieth centuries making greater use of empirical research methodologies sought to understand mental factors that affect athletic performance Though the psychologists behind the studies described here worked independently of one another and charted their own distinct courses of inquiry their works taken together provided the corpus of precedents and foundations on which the modern field of sport psychology was built. The essays collected in this volume tell the stories not only of these psychologists and their subjects but of the social and academic context that surrounded them shaping and being shaped by their ideas. Provided by publisher Sport and Christianity Matt Hoven, Andrew Parker, Nick J. Watson, 2019-10-31. Many people are passionate about sport yet few give thought to its role and importance in their lives let alone its relationship to Christian faith. This book examines the potential of sports and challenges readers to consider how it relates to their deepest passions behaviours and actions while providing newcomers to the field with a framework to help consider the connection between sports participation and faith based values. Featuring academic writers from a range of disciplinary fields including philosophy theology sports studies and education Sport and Christianity Practices for the Twenty First Century sheds insight into the meaning of sports for Christians as participants and as practitioners. Divided into practises for the mind for the heart and for moral life the numerous topics include the value of play in sports sports as a means for dialogue between faith traditions sports as a place to cultivate virtue and the Christian spiritual life and prayer and religious experiences in sports. The result is a text that promotes new ways of thinking about the sports Christianity relationship while at the same time developing a deeper understanding of the place of sports in our everyday lives.
